'JUST' MOTOR CARRIER REGULATIONS SOUGHT

Campaign Is Planned by Labor Groups—Statewide Meet Called Jan. 18.

With the view of perfecting plans for the launching of a campaign to obtain equitable and just regulation of motor highway carriers in Georgia, a statewide meeting of organized labor representatives has been called to convene here January 18 at the Labor Temple, it was announced Sunday. Following a meeting Sunday afternoon at the temple a subcommittee to draft a plan of action was appointed. Participating in a lengthy discussion led by Jerome Jones were many officials of state and city federations, including Louis Marquardt, secretary of the Georgia Federation of Trades; H. C. Lane, of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks; A. S. Nance, president of the Federation of Trades; O. E. Petry, president Georgia Federation of Labor; James Collins, president Allied Printing Trades; Carl Karston, secretary Atlanta Federation of Trades; and Emmett Quinn, president of the Machinists' Union, who presided at the meeting.

Billy Sunday Approves Mencken, 'Baths' Lewis
BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(UP)—The Rev. William A. "Billy" Sunday thinks Henry L. Mencken is a gentleman, but Sinclair Lewis is a "Bah!" Sunday said. "I heard Lewis stand in a pulpit in Kansas City," the evangelist explained, "and I heard him sneeringly say that if God were God, he, Lewis, gave Almighty God just 10 minutes to strike him dead. "If I had been God I'd have cut off Sinclair Lewis, and he'd never have gone to Stockholm to collect that award. "Henry L. Mencken is sour but honest. He really isn't a bad sort of fellow at heart. He is honest and a gentleman. He hasn't hurt religion, even if he hasn't helped it."

PROBE OF PRO-NORRIS SPENDING REQUESTED

McKelvie Asks Both Sides of Campaign Be Investigated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Samuel R. McKelvie, a member of the farm board, today renewed his request that the senate campaign funds committee investigate activities and expenditures in behalf of the reelection of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, as well as efforts to defeat him.

In a letter to Chairman Nye, of the senate committee, McKelvie, a former governor of Nebraska, said he had been informed that "hundreds of thousands" of copies of a certain publication were sent into Nebraska in the interest of the republican independent leader and that campaign workers from outside the state went to Lincoln and urged democrats to enter the republican primaries "thus violating the spirit and purpose of the law."

"Considering the amount of time your operatives have spent in Nebraska," McKelvie wrote, "these facts must be well known to them or can be easily secured."

McKelvie testified before the Nye committee recently that he contributed $10,000 to the campaign fund of Norris' primary opponent, but that only $2,800 of it was spent for that purpose.

His request today was made as the committee prepared to resume its inquiry Tuesday into efforts to defeat Norris. At that time, Robert H. Lyons, executive director, and Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the republican national committee, are to testify. They will be questioned about the $50,000 special account opened here by the committee last October for the convenience of Lucas.

Lewis Browne, Noted Author, To Lecture Here January 27

Lewis Browne, author of "This Believing World" and "That Man Heine" will lecture here on January 27 at the Atlanta Woman's Club. This will be his first lecture here. Although Lewis Browne is primarily known as an author, he also has established a reputation as a rabbi. Sinclair Lewis says of Lewis Browne: "He gives one the pleasure of watching a brain free from prejudices and fanaticism yet warm with humanitarianism, hard and athletic from many studies, yet alive to the gaieties and absurdities, the lovable common-sense of daily life. . . . I have met but two other ministers of God who so nobly and so winsomely present the spirit of religion as does Rabbi Browne."

Mr. Browne's life has been a very colorful one. His ability as a lecturer of eloquence and rare understanding soon manifested itself after he

MAN KILLS AND IS SLAIN IN SEARCH FOR WIFE
YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Theodore Fasce, 31, went looking for his wife early today. He didn't find her, but in his search he killed a woman, wounded his father-in-law, shot a policeman in the head and finally was slain by another policeman.

Fasce, unemployed, went to the home of his father-in-law, Bertram Bryant, 50, at midnight to find his wife, who had left him earlier in the day. He wanted to kill her, he told Bryant. Bryant telephoned the police.

Meanwhile, Miss Anna Wiedner, 28, occupying the apartment above Bryant's, sought to warn a brother on the lower floor to flee. Fasce shot her through the heart. Then he shot Bryant twice through the arm.

About this time Sergeant Michael Gilmartin and Patrolman William McQuillan arrived. Fasce, firing from two revolvers, dropped Gilmartin with a bullet in the head. McQuillan then shot Fasce four times, killing him. Gilmartin is expected to recover. The mother of Miss Wiedner is seriously ill and has not been told of her daughter's death.

BILLION-DOLLAR LOAN FOR BUILDING URGED

Economists Indorse Vast Public Works Program as Depression Cure.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Decriing the "timidity of businessmen and legislators" in the present business crisis, 90 economists today indorsed a billion dollar loan program to finance construction.

The indorsement to the plan of the emergency committee for federal public works which would back building of public improvements came from university and college leaders and labor officials from all parts of the nation.

In a statement issued by Harold S. Buttenheim, chairman of the emergency committee, the economists declared the federal government should hasten return of prosperity by large scale expansion in five fields, namely, highway building, reforestation, irrigation, drainage and improved water transport; reclamation of waste lands and flood control and elimination of grade crossings.

Blazes attributed to incendiary origin, as listed in Sunday's fire reports, were: Vacant residence at 711 Marietta street, slightly damaged, 4:58 p. m.; vacant house at 687 Tullin street, damaged, 5:29 p. m., and a vacant residence at 513 North Highland avenue, N. E., damaged at 6:28 p. m.

Blaze Betrays Huge 'Alky' Plant In Church Shadow

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Worshippers on their way to church today saw federal prohibition agents seize the largest alcohol cooking plant ever discovered in the Detroit area.

The plant occupied a fire-story building in the heart of the uptown church district. The building is less than a block from the residence of Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of the Methodist Episcopal church, president of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Worshippers gathering at the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church noticed smoke issuing from the building across the street and called firemen. Thomas H. Brennan, deputy administrator for Michigan, in charge of prohibition enforcement for the department of justice, was called by the fire fighters after they had forced their way into the place and ascertained its nature.

Brennan estimated the plant's output at 10,000 gallons of alcohol a day, worth $50,000 at market prices. He said the equipment probably cost $250,000.

No one was found in the building, although Mr. Brennan said 50 to 100 men would be required to operate the plant. Large supplies of raw materials were found. Firemen said the fire was caused by a short circuit and that little damage was done.

COL. TATE JOINS TOUR OF MEXICO

Marble Exhibit Assured
For Trip Proposed By Georgia Chamber.

An exhibit of Georgia marble for the Georgia good will tour to Mexico, February 15 to 27, was assured Sunday when it was announced that Colonel Sam Tate, of Tate, had made reservation for the proposed tour, with the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce.

Colonel Tate's action, accompanied by a strong influence from his conference with Consul Myers, of Honduras, recently assigned by Henry L. Simmons, secretary of state, to assist the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce in preparing the details of the trip, Colonel Tate also stated it was probable that a number of his immediate business associates and personal friends would make similar reservations within a few days.

During Friday and Saturday Consul Myers, in company with F. H. Abbott, secretary of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, called upon prominent manufacturers and bankers in Tate, Canton, Rome and Cedar-town. Keen interest is reported on the part of those who heard Consul Myers explain the trade opportunities that await Georgia manufacturers in Mexico because of the existing low combined rail-water rates to cities in that country.

An exhibit of rayon is promised from the Chattanooga mills at Rome, according to Mr. Abbott. The Cotton Mills have been asked for an exhibit of denim that already have found a prominent place in the export business from Georgia.

An exhibit of Georgia granite is offered for the tour by the Elberton Chamber of Commerce, and J. M. Simmons, president of the Elberton Granite & Box factory, of Bainbridge, said to be the largest of its kind in the world, has promised a crate and box exhibit and he and Mrs. Simmons have made reservations for the Mexican trip.

Consul Myers will confer with businessmen regarding the proposed tour during the present week, in LaGrange, Columbus, Bainbridge, Albany, Moultrie, Valdosta, Waycross and Brunswick. At some of these places he will be accompanied by William A. Dunlap, manager of the Atlanta offices of the domestic and foreign bureau of the United States department of commerce, who is giving active co-operation in the enterprise.

THE FOUNDATION LAID.

In a statement reviewing the present economic condition and the prospects for 1931, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont convincingly expresses his conviction, born of sound logic deduced from indisputable facts and figures, that the United States "will lead the world in a vigorous recovery from the present depression"—and that at no distant day.

Every evidence indicated in the middle of last year, the statement declares, that the turning point in the depression had been reached,
but over-production in certain raw material areas, the disastrous drought which visited the country and economic disturbances elsewhere in the world caused a postponement in the return of normalcy.

The natural results of a period of depression, Secretary Lamont shows, are a replenishment of savings exhausted during boom times,
and the lowering of stocks of goods
in all lines of business. Both of these things having taken place during the past 12 months in the United States, he argues that a firm foundation has already been built for the period of prosperity to come.

In summarizing the situation as it is now, Mr. Lamont says:

Earlier periods of depression, such as those of 1893 and 1921, were characterized in their later phases by the reaccumulation of savings which had been expended in the preceding boom period and by the wearing out of previously purchased goods, which caused a general buying movement on the part of the consuming public.
That we are now approaching such a period is indicated by several significant facts. On the one hand, savings deposits have been reduced and there is a general feeling of pessimism.
On the other hand, the business community has been maintaining a fairly even pace and has reached a level for the year
most equal to the high level of 1929 and above the total for 1928. At the same time stocks of department stores
have been sharply reduced and there are some evidences of recent expansion of retail buying. While it is impossible to forecast at what time unmistakable evidences of improvement
in business will occur, it is clear that we have reached a point where cessation of further declines and beginning of recovery may reasonably be expected.

Granting the soundness of this reasoning—and if there is any man in the country who is in a position to know just what the economic prospects are, it is the present able secretary of the department of commerce—then the south has another assurance of the fortunate position it occupies as the upward climb begins.

Federal reserve bank statements show that the savings and the checking accounts throughout the south are the largest in history, and that this section enjoyed a comparatively greater pre-holiday trade than any other section of the country.

There is every reason to believe,
therefore, that the south will be in the vanguard as the nation leads the world on to the period of prosperity which is undoubtedly ahead.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

News reports in Saturday's papers told of three Atlanta citizens being sent to the hospital when the taxicab in which they were riding
to their respective homes was crashed into by a stolen car driven by a 14-year-old negro boy.

The law says that no child under the age of 16 shall drive an automobile on a public thoroughfare,
but the police were, as usual, looking the other way as this car car-reared through the streets to the point where it brought suffering and financial loss to law-abiding citizens.

Not a day passes in Atlanta in which children from twelve to fifteen years of age are not to be found directing the course of what are, in their juvenile hands, potential instruments of death.

Although pedestrians and drivers of other automobiles are kept busy dodging the erratic driving of these children, our police officers seem to find it as hard to detect them

as the wheel as they do to detect cars
being driven at night with no tail light or with only one headlight and sometime not any.

With irresponsibles being permitted to violate the safety laws of the city at will, there is no wonder that constantly mounting accident tolls are bringing the people to the realization that the police, and especially the traffic officers, are asleep
on the job.

AGRICULTURAL REFORMS.

That will be a very happy day
for Georgia and the mass of her people when the dwellers in the rural spaces of the state can be shown their actual ability to live upon and live off the products of their small and well cultivated farms.

There is arable and productive soil enough in this state to provide more than all the agricultural produce needed by the inhabitants of the state. The problem is how to get those lands into profitable balanced production, and to so market the produce as to keep within the state and in the hands of the farmers fully $60,000,000 of money that our people send out every year
to buy the produce of other states' farmers.

That problem will have to be solved by the joint action of the purchasers of farm credits in the state. Only a negligible number of our farmers operate with their own capital. Practically all of them work under some form of credit obligation. Hence the first factor in the farm equation is for the credit fur-nishers to insist that their credits shall be profitably employed by their farmer clients.

The old plan of lending credit and eventually taking the farm for payment has been disastrous to many local banks, lending companies and merchants. One Vermont farm mortgage company, operating an agency in a middle Georgia city, now has 300 farms on its hands, and can neither sell nor use them to recover their money. Many of our local country banks are similarly overloaded, as reliable correspondents of The Constitution
have recently shown.

Many suggestions have been made for the cure of the depressed farm industry of the state, some of them plausible enough in principle, but none that has yet received approval
as generally practicable.

But there should be wisdom and practical skill enough among the business leaders of the state, outside of the farmers themselves, to devise the economic pressure and credit coercion necessary to reform
our present go-as-you-please unprofitable farming system. They can organize an honor system of credit preference to those farmers who will contract to follow the live-at-home plan. They can organize in each county seat a warehousing, packing and marketing association
that will standardize the farm produce of the county and find paying outlets for it.

Those things have been accomplished for the farmers in some other states, notably Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin, and can be as easily done here in Georgia. It requires some work, some patience, much persuasion and full proof of its profitableness to the individual farmer—but all that is greatly to be preferred to going on with bad farming, leading to a distressed industry, to abandoned farms, to decimated rural communities and to reduced state wealth.

General Atterbury very cleverly put the Rocky Mountains between himself and Pinchot's inauguration.
He even left his periscope behind him.

That pigs-in-clover puzzle was easy compared with getting the Wickersham commission all together
in one place.

Your real self is not the best moments, but is the moments which come easiest, oftenest and stay the longest.

It is said that President Hoover can renounce himself. Up to date no one else has volunteered for the privilege.

Anybody needing any kind of "relief" should apply to his congressman by early post. They are all on that job now.

Senator Watson says he will "stand by the president" as often as he can find out where the president stands. Attaboy, Jim!

For his relief plans President Hoover got all he wanted, and more too—and still he is not happy. Too much is often troublesome.

The puzzle in Washington is whether Senator Norris is outside in or inside out?

We failed to note any great splash when the president proclaimed the naval pact.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Italy's Awakening.

Can a regime change the spirit and inclinations of a people? Competent observers say that Stalin and Fascism are doing that very thing in Russia. But that Mussolini and the fascist regime should have made a profound impression upon the Italian people, this is flippantly denied by our liberals. For the sake of fairness it may be well at times to stand still a moment to take stock of what has been in Italy. If we do this we will soon come to see that it is not all historic fanfare and rattling speeches in that country. There are deep changes. For what, after all,
was Italy in pre-war days?

Travelers of a quarter century ago accustomed us to the idea of the country's rural inhabitants being an ignorant indolent lot, who lay in the sun all day and who relied largely for their income on what emigre relatives in America and elsewhere sent home. Rome, Naples and other cities swarmed with beggars. Forests were cut down indiscriminately. The area of malarial marshland was constantly increasing. Poverty was slowly leading to a degree of human degradation almost inconceivable in a race that desecrated the ruins of the world and the masters of the Renaissance.
If reaction against the ever-growing misery produced violent revolutionary movements in the urban centers, the peasant, in the main, was resigning himself with philosophic meekness to a fate that seemed inescapable.

There were no peasant revolts, no threats of it in Italy in the last century. The peasant emigrated or eked out a miserable existence at home. It can hardly be denied that such was the state of affairs, broadly speaking, 20, 30 years ago. The idea of a common Italian fatherland, that is to say of a common cultural inheritance, simple and not complex,
may be some who would not consider this shortcoming of a serious nature.
Yet historical experience teaches that a people which loses its contact with the past, as one of the sources from which a nation must draw its strength,
soon succumbs to a national inferiority complex.

The Italian masses had such a complex a quarter century ago. Flanders has it today and therewith has become an easy prey to the Russian Frenchification process instituted by Brussels. Until a few years ago
those of Milan considered themselves
a different people from the inhabitants of Venice or Bologna. The memory of foreign domination also was very vivid in Italy. The policeman, the judge and magistrate are still hated because not so very long ago they represented the alien Bourbon or Hapsburg.

Then came the name Mussolini. His appearance electrified the Italian.
There are many features connected with fascism which can never appear in a people which has been able to look upon the Russian emperor with sympathy even, why can they not appear in a fascist regime in the same spirit? Because the suppression of the press, the incarceration of opponents, the throttling of free speech and the abolition of parliamentary government? Do any of these exist in Russia, perchance? Fascism has made enormous errors. The impossible military establishment it maintains, the two armed forces leading the country to economic ruin.

But Mussolini said recently that he would sooner build houses than battleships. The inference is that forces over which he has no control are preventing him from doing what he wants. It's the old vicious circle of arms and security that is the Europe chasing blindly for perdition.
The pity is that the newly awakened energy of the Italian people—and this is the work of Mussolini—that the potentially powerful creative plan of a great people should be wasted to a large extent in the service of chauvinist imperialism.

Book on Palestine.

"The Great Betrayal" (Brentano's)
is a work dealing with the Jewish situation in so far as British policy, past and present, is concerned. The author is Dr. Stephen S. Wise and the title seems a very harsh one. Betrayal is always an ugly word. Yet one may be certain that Dr. Wise, who has always been a staunch opponent of Anglo-Jewish relations, is motivated by a genuine desire to lighten this grave indictment of England in its treatment of the Jews and the National Jewish home in Palestine.

The book is startlingly sober in tone.
No time is wasted in futile recrimi-nation. Facts are cited and the story of Anglo-Jewish relations is rapidly sketched with strict objectivity. This gives the book its value. The authors have stated their case so well and fully that the open-minded reader,
after perusal will say: "If these are the facts, if this is the truth," then the word betrayal is no overstate-ment.

But England's about face in Palestine is not a betrayal by the British people. The change in policy is merely an expedient of the labor government who are anxious to win Jewish support, as against Jewish claims,
we know now, were made to win
Moslem support at the round table conferences on the Indian affairs. The hopes of the Jewish people were terrified away for a matter of imperial interest. Only the future will show how far the labor government went in its betrayal of the Jewish people.
Dr. Wise and Mr. De Haas have done a useful piece of work by including official documents relating to Palestine and pronouncements of prominent statesmen on the subject of the establishment of a Jewish national home. It makes the book of invaluable service to the student of near-eastern affairs.

350 at Opening Of Art Exhibition At High Museum

Approximately 350 Atlantans attended the reception on Sunday afternoon that marked the opening of the High Museum of Art, of the exhibition of paintings by George Elmer Browne, distinguished American artist.

The opening day of the exhibition,
which will continue through January 10, was also marked by the sale of one of Mr. Browne's canvases.

On Wednesday night at 8 o'clock
Mr. Browne will give a lecture, free to the public, on the travels of an artist along the north and south shores of the Mediterranean. The talk will be illustrated by stereoscopic slides taken by Mr. Browne during the past two years.

A class in art, arranged to take advantage of Mr. Browne's presence in the city, will open at 9 o'clock in Wilbur Kurtz studio, in the Studio building. This continues a series of classes conducted by Mr. Browne when he was here some six or seven years
ago. People wishing to register for the class should call Mrs. Stewart

Outlook Not Promising for Constructive Legislation at Congress Session Which Opens Today—Georgians in Public Eye in Washington—No Decision Yet as to Soldiers' Home.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(Special.)—Congress will reconvene Monday noon for two months of more or less earnest endeavor to complete a worthy record for this seventy-first congress. The outlook is not promising for much really constructive legislation.
The main efforts of the party leaders, republican and democratic,
will be to pass the necessary appropriation bills and afford no excuse on their account for an extra session of the new congress.

Republican leaders, other than the insurgent ones, do not want an extra session, justifiably fearing that would likely happen with both houses so nearly and uncertainly balanced between the parties. President Hoover is so fearful of such a session that he will use all his influence he can command to avoid any occasion to call one into action.

It seems conceded that the senate insurgents only could force such a session, but that they could not do it without democratic senators aiding them in filibusters to defeat the usual appropriation bills. Democratic leaders over the country who are anxious to keep the party disengaged from the insurgents are appealing strongly to the regular democratic senators to stand firmly against any extra session maneuvers. Present political circumstances are entirely too favorable to the regular democratic party strongly favor the democratic party
and there would be danger of disturbing those conditions by the dubious proceedings of an extra session.

Who Will Be Eliminated?
Thirty more Georgians in the public service here in Washington.
Most of them are beholden to some Georgia congressman for help in securing government jobs. Naturally they are interested in having their congressman patron holding his job,
and hence speculation is rife as to what may happen to that Georgia representative when the general assembly undertakes to reduce the 12
districts of the state to 10.

It is plain enough that if the reduction is made, the latter in character, as is the national law con-temples, the new districts will present highly altered aspects, and will greatly disarrange the political fences of existing congressmen.

The Soldiers' Home Case.

As yet there is no decision in the veterans administration of the proper location in the southern section for the branch of the national soldiers'
home. The commissioners who held hearings in the south are still distinguishing the data and testimonies they obtained and will probably reach an agreed opinion very soon.

It is the hope of General Hines and general Wood the latter in charge of soldiers' homes matters, to get the necessary congress action in the present session to enable them to go forward promptly with the construction of the southern branch home. The pressing need for it is felt especially in the present period of business depression and unemployment suffered by many hundreds of more or less disabled veterans.

All that I can now say in reply to many inquiries, wired to me from Atlanta and other Georgia points, is that I am holding to the belief that the home will be recommended in the Atlanta area. Things said to me unofficially, but significantly, confirm my faith that the advantages of Atlanta outweigh those found in any other area in the south.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

BY DR. S. PARKES CADMAN.

Abilene, Texas.
Why should aliens be treated so harshly and unjustly in this country? You talk about his freedom, but I find in Great Britain and in Europe that I do here.

Allow me to ask you why seven and a half million Americans are denied the privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship? Are you aware that in apportioning the number of representatives in congress to each state representatives you and I are reckoned in the total population thus represented?

Elimination of aliens from the 1930
census count, on which count the reapportionment of the house of representative was made, would mean that Hoover on November 20, 1930, has been advocated by "representative Rankin, of Mississippi, ranking democratic on the census committee. Mr. Rankin said:

"The outstanding evil... lies in the fact that there are included in this count 7,500,000 alien who are not American citizens, who have never attempted to become American citizens and many of whom are here in violation of our immigration laws. Yet representation is being taken away from our American citizens in old settled states.

I know that it will be contended that the constitution provides that apportionment should be based upon the number of persons in each state. But the constitution means American persons."

Thousands of people who are not citizens are found in our larger centers, and their numbers are increasing. Doubtless aliens have some just grievances. I sympathize with these and have pleaded for their release. But I venture to say that Uncle Sam is still more and greater grievances on his side of the argument. After all, these aliens are a burden to the land in which they have drawn to it many millions of immigrants, the majority of whom have gladly enjoyed the distinction of American citizenship.

I earnestly advise you to follow
the example if you propose to manage your permanent home. Do not yourself fortunate that brave and true men and women labored hard and suffered to make this country what it is. Before complaining that you are a citizen you might enjoy the fruits of their sacrificial efforts. We have far too many aliens of the kind you speak of. What you are calling and election sure. Be an American if you desire to help the world. If not, it is always within your power to seek an-

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Special Dispatch to The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.) HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 4.—Joseph Schenck, who has survived so many storms and quite a few changes in motion picture history, tells me he believes comedy drama will be in the ascendency during the coming year.
Schenck, moreover, is convinced that a more extensive market will be available for the original manuscripts of comedy playwrights and authors.
When this is possible—that is, providing originals are of dramatic value
they invariably make better gelatine
than novels and plays that are pic-turalized.

Outstanding starring personalities
will continue as the biggest attractions, according to the headmen of United Artists. I believe this, too.
Most of the movie world would rather see Douglas Fairbanks or Norma Shearer in a fair picture than to cast an unknown set of faces admirably cast in a magnificent story. This is the habit of the audience, and when gelatine personalities mean more to the public than the stars of the stage.
Theaters will be smaller, the film
more decorative, and the story more fascinating. The fact that projection is always heard to best advantage in a studio room built for that purpose, there is much to be said for the picture show
before the showing of silent picture
"talkies" came into vogue, will never disappear the modern picture to advantage.

Schenck says he believes Mary Pic-
ford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Norma Talmage, Eddie Connor, Gloria Swanson, Al Johnson, Joan Bennett, Evelyn Laye, Walter Huston
and Chester Morris will be greater attractions during the coming year
than they have ever been in the past.
Oh, and I almost forgot to say that he predicts the death of the picture show. Some of us could dance for joy at the very idea! "Pro-logs and presentations are relics of the past," he says. "The picture show
he was here some six or seven years
ago. People wishing to register for

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THEORY AND PRACTICE OF KEEPING THE TEETH CLEAN—AND IN.

A dentist who believes everybody should brush his teeth regularly writes:
For years I have prided myself
on reading your articles carefully.
Running water, however, purifies itself.
Sewage and waste can become for a moment, but a beneficent natural law operates to neutralize all impurities and make the water clean again as it flows.
It is a wise and good law that thus rewards the progress of a stream,
and its manifestations are not limited to water.

A little child develops habits that annoy and dismay inexperienced parents, to whom each new development seems permanent, but in a day or a week these habits are outgrown and new ones are developed to take their place.
So all through childhood and youth the follies and faults that seem to threaten permanent injury are overcome by the process of growth, until at last the child reaches a sane and wholesome maturity despite the propensities of evil.

Here anxiety ends, but it is precisely here that danger begins. While growth continued, life was a stream that purified itself. Now that growth has ended, life may become a stagnant pool that retains every impurity.
If you spent your childhood and youth in a small town and then went out into the world to make your fortune, meeting new people, absorbing new ideas, learning new standards, and then returned to visit your old home, were you not astonished and a little ashamed by the people's interests and foolish feuds and silly standards that had survived there while you were outgrowing them in another environment?

Left in that stagnant water, you would have shared its narrowness and ignorance and stupid prejudices. Travel saved you. If you are a wiser and broader man than those you left behind, the contrast is not due to any inherent superiority in yourself. Movement developed you, and you outgrew the faults of your background.

There is no compromise with nature's laws. When water no longer flows, it pays the penalty of stagnation. When a man no longer grows, his faults and follies become fixtures.
Travel no longer is necessary, for there are books in which one may find fodder for the mind's development. But this much is certain, whether you have a background of bucolic ignorance or academic brilliance; the moment you quit growing, your opportunity to purge yourself of impurities is gone.

If a new idea shocks you, scum is forming on the pool to shut out the light.

banker who is strict, "hard boiled," if you please, is liable to be less popular than the "easy" banker and by that same token the public has reflected the unwise business policies and conditions that became more than usually prevalent in our business activities and contributed to the difficulty of banking. The vast bulk of bank assets, however, are 100 per cent sound
above all question."

The public can exert an influence in shaping the character of banking and credit by supporting the purposes of bankers "to maintain intelligent independent and honest banking supervision."

In many cases of bank troubles the only thing wrong with a bank was an unduly suspicious and apprehensive
state of mind in its customers. Mr.
Stephenson said, "The bank is not in condition of its own but by baseless rumors which sometimes led them to destroy the value of their own deposits by demanding their money immediately, forcing a bank to sacrifice its assets and otherwise disrupt its financial operations."

Weak Ones Have Gone.
Mr. Stephenson reminded the public that "deposits are not kept in cash
but are invested in loans and securities and even the soundest assets of this type require some time to reconvert to full value into cash deposits."

In conclusion, Mr. Stephenson said that "the events of the past year have brought about, I am confident, a stronger banking situation by eliminating, some of the weaker elements. I feel that we can truthfully say we will have as a result of these unhappy
but curative conditions the strongest banking situation we have ever enjoyed and one that is worthy of the highest confidence of all our people."

Mr. Stephenson cited two illustrations in his relations with banks unwittingly encourages less sound banking methods.
"If businessmen in a community,
when refuted loans by their banks
for good and sufficient reasons because conditions are not favorable, therefore withdrawing their funds and investing in less sound methods prevail, they clearly contribute to a less sound banking situation."

Majority 100 Per Cent Sound.
"Also, if, in the next heat of competition, a banker offers higher interest rates or more free service to attract customers than the earnings of conservative banking justify and is encouraged by the patronage of the public as against a more conservative bank, obviously the public is again playing a part in bringing about a less sound banking situation."

He asserted that "it is, of course,
the unquestioned duty of the banker
to choose only sound loans and investments," but pointed out that "the difficulty of such judgment, and human judgment is never infallible, is plainly increased in such times and under such conditions as we have been passing through, with many businesses not making expected earnings and therefore hampered in meeting their obligations."

"Unfortunately," he added, "some of the banks are in a position to be forced to liquidate their assets at a loss."

MIAMI-BOUND PLANES

STOP IN SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 4.—(R)—
Three Miami-bound planes, bound Savannah airport Sunday afternoon,
two stopping over for the night.
Eddie Schneider, junior transconti-ental pilot, landed at 2 o'clock and took off at 3:30. He had as passengers Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Foster and B. R. Mockler.
Al Studebaker, Elmer N. Y., and Walter Sell, of Johnstown, Pa., are here tonight and will resume their flight tomorrow. Both flew a Bird planned to land in a Cessna cabin plane.

SIX DEAD IN PLANE CRASHES IN SOUTH

Sunday Air Record Marred by Accidents—Amy Johnson Forced Down.

OVERTON, Texas, Jan. 4.—(P)—Three men en route from Shreveport, La., to their homes in Dallas, were killed instantly when their plane crashed into a tree near here today.

The dead: Tom Holcomb, Addison Noever, pilot; Horace Clark.

The men were believed to have been seeking a place to land in mist and fog when the plane struck the top of a pine tree.

T. C. Bradbury, on whose farm the plane fell, and several negroes heard the crash, ran to the scene and extricated the bodies from the wreckage.

They were placed on a truck and brought here and later were taken to Tyler, 20 miles away, by an undertaker.

There was no explosion or fire when the plane crashed, it was reported.

AT LEAST THREE DIE IN MISSOURI ACCIDENT

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 4.—(P)—Three men were killed when an airplane crashed at Rosencrans airport here today.

The dead: Winston L. Hyatt, St. Joseph, pilot; Leroy Riemer, St. Joseph, pilot, and a man named Payne.

It was believed another man may have perished in the crash. The plane was owned by Hyatt.

AMY JOHNSON UNHURT WHEN PLANE CRACKS UP

WARSAW, Jan. 4.—(P)—Amy Johnson, the 25-year-old flyer who left England New Year's Day on a projected flight to Peking, was driven by fog to a forced landing late today at the village of Anielin, near Krasnosielk and about 60 miles north of here.

She was uninjured but the undercarriage of her machine was smashed in the rough landing.

Miss Johnson, who last summer flew from England to Australia in 19 days and is now seeking new adventures, left Berlin for Warsaw at 12:27 a. m. today in the face of unfavorable weather.

Atmospheric conditions were so bad that she was driven northward from the German capital and missed Warsaw entirely. Then, before she could get back on her course, a heavy fog engulfed her and she was forced down.

Polish officials and representatives of the British embassy had waited at the Warsaw airport all afternoon for the girl aviator, and when she had not arrived by nightfall they became alarmed.

Word was broadcast for all police throughout Poland to be on the lookout for her.

In the meantime the Associated Press learned of the landing through the telephone exchange and was able to get through to Miss Johnson, although disturbances on the line made even a brief conversation difficult.

"I am all right," she said. "I will leave my plane here and go on to Warsaw by train."

TWO CRITICALLY HURT IN TENNESSEE CRASH

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Jan. 4.—(P)—Houston Seahorn and L. P. Robinson, pilots of No. 100, were critically injured, Seahorn probably fatally, when their plane crashed near here today after going into a tailspin at an altitude of 100 feet.

PILOT SERIOUSLY HURT AT BENTONVILLE, ARK.

BENTONVILLE, Ark., Jan. 4.—(P)—Two youths were injured, one seriously, when their plane failed to make altitude and crashed at the edge of a flying field about two miles south of here today.

Edgar Lee, 23, piloting the plane, was taken to a Fayetteville hospital, where his injuries were said to be critical. A companion, Charles Kuhn, was only superficially injured.

PLANE DEMOLISHED AT OCALA, FLORIDA

OCALA, Fla., Jan. 4.—(P)—The plane of Frank Meehan, Philadelphia flyer, was demolished in a forced landing in a field eight miles south of here today. Aside from slight bruises, the airman was uninjured.

Meehan, local police were told, was flying low because of fog and at the time he was attempting to land, the wheels of his plane skidded and the machine overturned.

He was en route from Philadelphia to Tampa.

ATTEMPTED PLANE THEFT BRINGS CRASH

WAUSAU, Wis., Jan. 4.—(P)—Wisconsin's first attempted airplane robbery today ended in a crash which wrecked the plane.

Two men, posing as bootleggers "in a hurry to get a load of liquor at Green Bay, Wis., and run it to Chicago," forced Melvin Johnson, watchman for the Northern Airways, to open a hangar at the airport and wheel a plane out.

Johnson said the men made him start the motor. They got in but in taxiing the ship down the field nosed into an embankment and smashed up. The robbers escaped.

WOMEN START NEW ENDURANCE FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—(P)—Bobby Trout, Los Angeles aviatrix, and Edna May Cooper, former screen actress, began their second attempt to set a women's endurance flight record at 2:30 p. m. (P. S. T.) today.

Miss Trout piloted her monoplane Lady Ralph into the air from the municipal airport.

A previous attempt New Year's Day ended quickly when the refueling plane was unable to function.

who proceeded with his train into Atlanta, arriving here at 7:40 p. m.

In serious condition.

At Wesley Memorial hospital, fraternity brothers of the injured men were informed that their condition, while serious, was not critical. Bone was believed to have received broken legs and internal injuries, while Rogers' injury apparently was a fractured hip.

Farr, the dead youth, was the son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Farr, of Tignall, where his father is a prominent Methodist pastor. He was a member of the Emory Glee Club, secretary and treasurer of the Junior class, and president of the Phi Gamma Literary Society. He was one of the most popular students of the University.

will be inducted later in the afternoon, from $6,000 a year to $7,500.

Reports of various committees will feature the session, but they for the most part will be filed without any formal action. The report of the finance committee will list a total shortage of $506,149, exclusive of December salaries for the Atlanta public school department, estimated at about $238,000.

At 3:30 o'clock the 1930 council will convene to hear the departing message of Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, and from 4:45 o'clock until 5 o'clock there will be a concert by the Atlanta police band and the Electrical Workers' quartet.

Promptly at 5 o'clock the 1931 council will convene, and the oath of office will be administered Mayor Key by Judge Eugene D. Thomas, of Fulton county superior court. Following this the oaths will be taken by the new councilmen and aldermen, and the first roll call of a 1931 council will be made by J. Henson Tatum, city clerk.

be delivered Tuesday, and has obtained from Atlanta bankers a statement showing that approximately $3,250,000 may be obtained if the state will hypothecate as much as $8,000,000 of the rentals. The position of the governor is that such a discount demands an interest payment too high for sound financing.

The state debt situation formed the principal issue between Secretary of State George H. Carswell and Governor-elect Russell in the run-off campaign last September. The victory of the latter, by a surprisingly large popular and unit vote, has generally been accepted as a decisive elimination of the highway diversion proposal. Especially is this true with the friends of the state's highway system and even with legislators who assert they will vote to adjourn without doing anything before they agree to any encroachment upon the road money.

From early arrivals has been advanced a proposal to bar from the floor of the house and senate all persons other than members, officials and newspapermen assigned to report the proceedings, a suggestion which is expected to take the form of a resolution when the decks are cleared for action Tuesday. This proposal forebodes, according to the lobby gossip of Sunday, a program to put a tax on all luxuries, including soft drinks and amusements, as well as on long-distance telephone messages and the kilowatt hour consumption of electricity.

While the session has been called primarily to raise the $6,200,000 to wipe the state's financial sheet clean—in which condition Governor Hardman is anxious to leave the books before he retires from office—the executive, in his call, included other matters which are certain to provoke more than passing interest at the capitol while the lawmakers are in town.

One of these is the salient recommendation of Dr. Harley Lutz, Princeton economist engaged by the governor to make a tax survey of the state, for the creation of the office of a state tax commissioner and the concentration in that department of all revenue-raising activities of the administrative kind. The Georgia Tax Revision Association has endorsed this suggestion along with others advanced by the Lutz report.

There also is in the call a suggestion for the setting up of an executive budget act, over which the executive shall have complete control, and a centralized bookkeeping system. These are the only two measures which are related to the reorganization plans offered by Searle, Miller & Co., a firm of New York business engineers engaged by the governor to make the administrative survey at the same time Dr. Lutz made the tax survey.

Reorganization, however, will get adequate informal consideration. It is one of the plans of Governor-elect Russell, and the membership of the legislature, convening Tuesday, includes many friends of the speaker who have been re-elected to serve in the regular session, which will convene next June.

A stay of from thirty to sixty days is expected.

ina, issued a statement urging that the administration support the bill of Representative Holaday, republican, Illinois, for a $5,000,000,000 bond issue to be spent in public roads construction.

In the senate leaders anticipate an outbreak of debate over the proposed consolidation of the eastern railroads into four units. An attempt also is expected to reconsider the nomination of the power commissioners as a result of their dismissal of some of the employees of the old commission. Word is opening the doors for the old members to file for re-employment may temper this row.

On Friday the senate will begin consideration of the nominees to the reorganized tariff commission. Contests face at least two of the six—Edgar Brossard, of Utah, a republican, and Alfred P. Dennis, of Maryland, a democrat. The senate also will consider the nomination of Eugene Meyer, of New York, to be governor of the federal reserve board.

Senate leaders are confident that if President Hoover gives formal assurance that he will not call the senate into special session to consider the World Court one of the big difficulties confronting them in clearing the way for adjournment on March 4 will be erased.

The republicans of the senate foreign relations committee voted to defer this subject until next December. This action, however, will not prevent the president from calling a special session. Informal assurance has come from the White House that Mr. Hoover did not contemplate this action, but he is expected to give formal assurance shortly.

Mercer G. Johnston, director of the people's legislative service, today issued a statement demanding that the senate recall the nominations of Chairman Smith, Marcel C. Ganssaul, and Claude L. Draper, of the power commission, because of their discharge of Solicitor Russell and Accountant King.

He urged that if it is impossible to recall the nominations after the members had been sworn into office that they be impeached.

Tobacco Co-op Membership Drive Opens in State Today

First of Series of Thirty-Two Conferences Will Be Held in Lakeland and Metter.

BY GEORGE HATCHER.
Leaders of Georgia's tobacco co-operative movement this week will launch final steps toward giving growers a marketing association, when the first of a series of thirty-two meetings scheduled in every section of the tobacco-growing belt will be held.

County agents, growers and others connected with the industry will gather today in Metter and Lakeland for the first of the conferences. Two sessions daily, in separate sections, will extend through January 22.

According to William J. Firor, of the State College of Agriculture, which is sponsoring the co-operative movement under direction of the federal farm board, the advantages and disadvantages of a co-operative marketing association will be explained at each of the meetings by federal experts and representatives from the state college.

The chief objective, however, will be a drive for sufficient membership to complete the co-op organization.

Chilton Ellett, federal farm board representative, will preside at the meeting in Metter today, and C. G. Garner, of the State College of Agriculture, will be in charge at Lakeland.

Outlining the advantages of a co-operative association which will be stressed upon growers at these meetings, Professor Firor points out that "marketing of farm products is much more than simply selling them."

"It is the rendering of the necessary services that make it possible for the consumer to use the products of the farm," according to the marketing specialist.

"Marketing is marketing to advantage. Merchandising is a process that insures up-to-date methods throughout the marketing system all the way from determining the character of production and standardization of the product to deliver to consumers what will please them."

"It means just this—that the vari-

Athenians To Indorse Wilson's Peace Program

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Athenians who are interested in carrying forward to completion Woodrow Wilson's program for world peace will be given an opportunity this week to sign a petition urging Georgia's senators to support the World Court protocol at this session of congress.

Services in marketing shall be conducted in an efficient and economic manner to the best advantage of those using the system.

"Any improvement in the marketing and merchandising of farm products will result in a lower price being paid for the product by the consumer, and at the same time the farmer will receive more for his product."

"These results are made possible by the narrowing of the spread in price that the farmer receives and the price that the consumer pays through savings in marketing channels."

CHILD CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN MACON

Survey Planned to Determine Disposal of "Protective Cases."

MACON, Ga., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The state board of public welfare will begin a survey here Monday to determine what should be done with children, described by juvenile court officials as "protective cases" and charges of the county, who do not come within the meaning of the juvenile court act as detention subjects.

Miss Louisa Fitz-Simons, of the state board, who was in Macon a month ago while differences between county commissioners and juvenile court authorities were being trashed out, said today in a message from Atlanta that she would be here to begin the survey.

In the survey, Miss Fitz-Simons and others from her department will go fully into the situation here, and make recommendations to the county commissioners. She said other cities in the state have adopted excellent systems for taking care of the "protective cases," and a similar system will be recommended here if the survey warrants it, it was said.

The situation reached a crisis here some weeks ago when Judge Hugh W. Evans, of the juvenile court, ordered the return of approximately 20 children to their homes after they had been rescued from alleged immoral environments by court workers and placed in the juvenile detention home.

Judge Evans said he was acting on orders of the commissioners, but the latter issued no such order.

The commissioners did say, however, that the juvenile detention home "is no place for such cases."

After much discussion, the commissioners and the juvenile court authorities reached an agreement, and the children were placed at the county's expense in a local orphanage pending the survey of the welfare board.

Bibb County Legislator Proposes Relocation of State Prison Farm

MACON, Ga., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Asserting that the business of the state prison farm years ago, L. T. Gillen, Bibb county legislator, today announced that he is preparing a bill for the extra session of the general assembly to provide for the sale of the state farm and its relocation elsewhere.

Mr. Gillen declared that it is a matter of common knowledge that the state acquired the prison farm site in a "politicized" manner, and the land will not produce and that its buildings are insufficient. The state has wasted hundreds of thousands in attempting to farm "the old or broken down" buildings, which comprise the farm, he stated.

"One of the reasons for the extra session," Mr. Gillen stated, "is to consider the possibility of obtaining some provisions for the care of the convicts who will be turned over to the prison commission without any buildings provided for their work or living quarters that can be rendered the state, I am of the opinion that the present state farm should be sold and that a 5,000-acre tract of land should be purchased that will be of some benefit to the state."

"Upon investigation I find that in a great many states that own and operate state farms that the farms produce sufficient corn, wheat, vegetables and fruits to accommodate the needs of the institution. However, in Georgia our state farm has and always will be a total burden and will continue to be unless the state purchases a farm that will produce. As a matter of good business, there is no reason why the state should continue to sustain losses in operating the farm and caring for convicts when this free labor could at least be self-sustaining."

"At the present time the state can purchase a desirable farm at one-fifth the value of same, and in building a state penitentiary could assist the unemployment situation somewhat. The present buildings at Milledgeville are insufficient to provide quarters for the returned convicts."

NYE CASE JUDGMENT REFUSED BY MATTHEWS

Delaware Stockholders Required to Furnish Bond of $125,000.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Judge H. A. Matthews, of the Macon circuit, Saturday handed down a final decree in an action involving the Nye Odorless Incinerator Company, of Delaware, and a group of prior preferred stockholders in which he favored the preferred stockholders in a number of points, but refused to restrain pending litigation against them in the courts of Delaware.

The prior preferred stockholders in the corporation were stockholders in the old Nye Odorless Crematory Company of Georgia. The Georgia group, headed by A. C. Felton, Jr., sold their common stocks in 1928 to a group headed by Darnot Shumwell, of Albany, Ga. The latter group formed a new corporation, and obtained a charter under the laws of Delaware. Headquarters are maintained in Albany, Ga. Stockholders of the Georgia corporation held some of the prior preferred and preferred stock as security.

The action which Judge Matthews decided grew out of an allegation by the Georgia group that the Delaware group had defaulted on the contract of sale which provided that $200,000 in net quick assets should be maintained at all times. They said, too, that the Delaware group had failed to maintain the sinking fund provided by the contract.

Under authority of the sales contract, and by reason of the alleged defaults, the prior preferred stockholders called a meeting here last spring, intending to vote the stock of the Delaware corporation. Officers of the corporation filed a petition for injunction, and temporarily restrained the stockholders meeting.

Judge Matthews refused to render a judgment of injunction against the Georgia stockholders, but he continued the temporary restraining order.

He required of the Delaware stockholders, now holding the controlling interest in the company, to furnish a bond of $125,000 on February 3 which will protect the Georgia stockholders, and reserved the right to appoint an auditor at intervals to examine the records of the company with a view especially to determine the amount of net quick assets.

Fitzgerald Police Chief Candidate Loses Fight

FITZGERALD, Ga., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The mayor and city council were free today to elect a chief of police as result of a decision in Douglas Saturday by Judge M. D. Dickerson, which dissolved a temporary injunction obtained by George Lewis, a candidate for the office.

Charles F. Dixon was declared nominee for the post of chief of police at a caucus on December 9 in which Mayor Clayton Jay and nine aldermen participated. Lewis claimed that five aldermen voted for him, and obtained the injunction. Judge Dickerson gave his decision after hearing the sworn testimony of six aldermen which exonerated Mayor Jay of alleged wrong announcement of the result of the voting.

SAVANNAH OFFICER FOUND DEAD ON ROAD

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The body of Lieutenant James S. Hallford, a veteran member of the Savannah police force, was found Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Burkhalter road several miles from the city, death being apparently due to natural causes.

Lieutenant Hallford had evidently driven out on the road Saturday afternoon. Police found his body beside his automobile with his coat used as a bolster for the head. There was a wound on the back of the head which Coroner Johnson and police believe was caused when he fell out of his car and his head hit against an exposed tree root. Heart disease was given by the coroner as the probable cause of death.

Police believe he had a companion and that this person bolstered up his head when it was found he had died evidently become panic-stricken and left the scene.

According to Coroner Johnson and police investigating there was no evidence of any foul play.

Lieutenant Hallford left his home early Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and did not return last night nor did he respond for duty at police station this morning. An investigation was immediately begun by police.

Ayers' Vitality Amazes Doctors In Fight for Life

Clinging to life with a tenacity that amazed even his physicians and nurses, Hartwell F. Ayers, former Atlanta newspaperman who was shot through the neck and abdomen early this morning in a revolutionary skirmish in front of the presidential palace in Panama, Sunday, was reported as being weaker, but "cheerful."

Dr. Thomas Walter Ayers, 1013 Ponce de Leon avenue, father of the wounded writer, received a cablegram Sunday morning from T. H. Calhoun, representative of the New York Times at Balboa and intimate friend of young Ayers, in which the condition of the former Atlantan was described as weaker.

"Hartwell weaker today," Calhoun's cable read. "I am at your service every way. Address Calhoun, Balboa."

Associated Press dispatches from Panama City were that Ayers' condition was unchanged, but that he was in good humor and exhibited such a vitality that attendants at Gorgas hospital were amazed. He received many cablegrams from friends and relatives in the United States, voicing the hope he would recover. Among them was one from Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama.

WHAT A WORLD OF GRIEF IT SAVES YOU!

WE KNOW a seed house that proves each season's crop of seeds in their own trial gardens before they offer them to the public. Flowers and vegetables grown from these seeds must measure up to definite standards, or else the entire crops from which the samples were taken are burned.

We know a manufacturer of dry batteries who tested a new product two years before he sold a single battery to a single dealer.

We know a manufacturer of an anti-freeze solution for automobile radiators who spent two years testing his product under all conditions before he said a word in advertising about the merits of his goods.

We know a manufacturer of household pharmaceutical products whose self-imposed standard of purity and efficacy is even higher than that laid down by the United States Pharmacopoeia and the National Formulary.

If we mentioned their names you would recognize them immediately. You probably would say, "I plant those seeds," "I use that battery," "I use that anti-freeze," "My medicine cabinet contains those products."

The four instances cited are typical of every reliable manufacturer in America. Millions of dollars are spent annually to develop, to improve, to standardize, and to take the guesswork out of merchandise. Other millions of dollars are spent in advertising to tell you about them.

All of which is to say that in putting your trust in advertised merchandise you save yourself the bother, the expense, the disappointment—yes, the danger—of experimenting and discovering for yourself which make of soap, breakfast food, radio tubes, lingerie, gasoline, tea, electrical device, stationery—or what-not—gives you the most service for your money.

The news columns of The Constitution keep you informed of the latest international, national and local happenings. The advertisements keep you informed of the newest, most advantageous, most reliable merchandise that America's most progressive makers are producing.

An Open Letter to Atlanta Consumers
and Georgia Producers
of MILK

We wish to advise you that Pedigree Dairies has not and will not refuse to purchase milk from Georgia farmers.

We cannot comply with the demand made on us to raise prices to milk consumers. Conditions do not warrant this; but up to the limit of our sales we have a market for Georgia milk at a fair price in relation to what we charge the public.

Conditions which make it impossible to raise our prices to the public are the same here as throughout the United States, namely: over supply, decreased demand and general business depression.

Prices here are entirely in line with prices elsewhere.

We will not be a party to any plan whereby any farmer or consumer is discriminated against for the benefit of any group or any individual.

We will always give preference to Georgia milk producers and up to the limit of our sales we have a market for Georgia milk producers at a fair price at which they can make a profit.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

JUMPER HAS AN ADVENTURE OF HIS OWN.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Depend on one sense if you must, But give it not entire trust. Jumper the Hare.

Jumper the Hare had seen Mrs. Grouse have the narrowest of narrow escapes from Terror the Goshawk. His heart had seemed to be right up in his throat as he watched the swift pursuit of Mrs. Grouse and then had seen her plunge head first into the snowbank just as Terror was about to strike her down. He had chuckled as he had watched Terror fly away in a rage of disappointment.

"There is one good thing about Terror and that is that he can be seen if one has his eyes open," thought Jumper. "Now, if he were dressed wholly in white as I am, some of us wouldn't stand much of a chance. It must be for some time that the dark blue gray of his coat shows up against the white snow, and even the light gray of his waistcoat can be seen. Well, now that I know he is about here in the Green Forest he'll be smarter than I think he is if he catches me. I suspect he won't pay much attention to me as long as Jumper the Hare and Mrs. Grouse are about. Terror certainly is fond of Grouse. I hope Mrs. Grouse will be wise enough to stay down there under the snow. I wonder where Thunderer is?"

He didn't have to wonder long. Again he heard the whirr of stout wings and again he watched a breathtaking race as the brown form of Thunderer came into view with Terror the Goshawk hard after him and gaining with every wing stroke. Apparently Thunderer knew just where Mrs. Grouse had gone, for as he reached that bank of snow he, too, plunged from sight, throwing up a little cloud of snow in the very face of Terror. The latter, having twice failed, was in a terrible rage and Jumper shivered as he watched. He shivered, but he took care not to shiver so that it could be seen. He shivered inside, so to speak. You see, more than once Terror the Goshawk glared directly at Jumper and the only reason he didn't see Jumper was because the latter was all in white and didn't move. Had he moved ever so little Terror would have seen him.

After Terror had flown away Jumper waited for some time for Thunderer or Mrs. Grouse to come out of the snow, but he waited in vain. Finally he made up his mind that they were going to spend the night down there, which is exactly what they were planning to do. "I may as well move on," thought Jumper, and took just one jump. As he did so the top of what appeared to be a snow-covered stump moved, and as Jumper landed and instantly froze (became motionless) he found fierce-looking eyes that glared at him so hungrily that Jumper had all he could do to keep those long legs of his from running away with him.

If Jumper had shivered inside when Terror the Goshawk glared at him he fairly shook inside now. It was Whitey the Snow Owl, come down from the Far North. Flying noiselessly, like other members of the Owl family, he had alighted there while Jumper's head was turned. He had not seen Jumper and when Jumper had jumped Whitey's head had been turned the other way. His wonderful ears had perhaps caught the tiny sound made when Jumper had landed in the snow and he had turned his head instantly to see if anything was moving. Well it was for Jumper that he froze in his tracks, and he knew Terror the Goshawk might prefer Grouse, but here was one who would choose a Hare or a Rabbit any time before he would a Grouse. Do you wonder that Jumper shivered and shook inside, but took the greatest care not to outside?

KING WOULD TAKE U. S. MEN FROM NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Proposals for removal of United States marines from Nicaragua and for abandonment of the battleship modernization program will be pressed in the senate this week by Senator William H. King, democrat, Utah.

These two issues, tempered by widely scattered views on both the democratic and republican sides, will be thrust into an already tangled session in the first two days after congress reconvenes tomorrow.

King announced tonight he would introduce the following resolution tomorrow: "Resolved: That it is the sense of the senate that the president should immediately withdraw from Nicaragua the armed forces of the United States."

Tuesday the senate, under a special order, may take up a motion by King to reconsider a bill authorizing expenditure of $30,000,000 for the modernization of the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho. The senate passed this measure without debate. King desires to kill it.

King is understood to have the sympathies of Senator William E. Borah, republican, Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee. The recent killing of eight marines and 11 so-called bandits or insurgents prompted King's resolution.

Six Frenchmen Killed In Alpine Avalanche

BRIANCON, France Jan. 4.—(AP)—Six Frenchmen died today as they were engulfed by an avalanche in a pass of the Alps mountains along the Franco-Italian frontier. They had lunched at a hotel situated on the Italian side and were going home when a snowslide estimated at from 25 to 30 feet high crashed down and buried them. Soldiers stationed at Briancon were called to recover the bodies.

Among the victims were Theodore Webaux, one of the most prominent cotton manufacturers of Roubaix, and his two sons. Another was Henri Bousquet, a member of the French council of state.

The medium size requires but 3-7 yards of 39-inch material. Style No. 139 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

The original used dark green flat crepe. Black crepe is also very smart for this model.

We suggest that you order a copy of our large Fashion Magazine. It should be in every home for of course every woman wants to look her best without great expense, and this book points the way.

Price of book 10 cents. Price of pattern 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

Gas Ends Futile Life Of Man of Culture

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Elliott Collier, 40-year-old son of the late Price Collier, died by gas today in his $8-a-week hall bedroom. He was found in his chair, a book on his lap. Police called it suicide.

Collier, with a background of culture that included study in universities here and abroad, has been living on a $30-a-week income left him by his grandmother, friends said. His father was the well-known traveler-writer, and much of Collier's younger life was spent in high social circles in European capitals.

Among the books in his room—some rare editions and many works on music—was found a diary, one notation saying: "More and more I seem to love to dwell in the past—before the horrors of modern civilization had come upon us, electricity, automobiles, airplanes, telephones, woman suffrage and prohibition."

Few Senators Will Provide Much Commotion This Week

Resumption of Congressional Sessions Likely to Bring Large Amount of Hubbub in "Upper" House.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Congress, resuming this week after its two-week recess, will provide abundant commotion for those who think of politics in terms of excitement. Most, indeed, nearly all the commotion, will be furnished by the senate. More accurately, it will be furnished by a comparatively small number of senators. One senate committee will provide the public with a further installment of hearings about the quarrel in which Executive Director Lucas of the republican national committee secretly contributed funds

ed outline, above flare skirt portions which also lengthen the sides of the front below the yoke. A pleasing collar rolls comfortably away from the neck. The sleeve is short and finished with an upturned cuff.

Designed in five sizes, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It will require 3-1/2 yards of 39-inch material for a 38-inch size. For collar, cuffs and bow of contrasting material 5-8 yard is required 20 inches wide. To trim with bias binding will require 5-3/4 yards 11-1/2 inches wide. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fullness extended is 21-3 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Send 12 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1930 Book of Fashions.

Address orders to Beauty Fashion Department, care The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

As a further contribution to commotion, a few senators will attempt to reverse the senate's confirmation more than two weeks ago of five new appointees to the power commission. The new power commission, after being confirmed, dismissed two employees whom some senators did not want dismissed. Out of this will arise an attempt, obviously illegal and impossible, to have the senate withdraw confirmation already given to presidential appointees.

A group of senators largely identified with the group responsible for the items of commotion, will undertake to prevent the interstate commerce commission from exercising the power it now has to authorize, in its discretion, the recently arranged railroad merger in the east.

A committee of the senate will wrangle with a committee of the house about whether it is enough for the government to operate the water power plant at Muscle Shoals, or whether the government must also, as the senate committee demands, build and operate transmission lines.

Some senators will work openly and others will work indirectly to so delay the work of congress as to make a special session of the new congress necessary after March 4.

All the senators whose names will emerge conspicuously in these various activities will number not more than 10 out of the total of 96. Meantime some 80 senators whose names will not appear in the newspapers will be busy at the extremely hard, grueling work of minutely examining the items and details of 11 immense appropriation bills. Because small items of finance are not spectacular, this activity, which is the fundamental business of the session of congress, will not appear much in the newspapers.

Morrow Slighted.

One of the senators who will be doing this or other hard work, whose name will not appear in the newspapers, and who has not yet made a speech in the senate, is the ablest man who has come to that body in several years. His name is Dwight Morrow and he comes from New Jersey. The senate, as its way of welcoming an able and eminent man, gave him about the least desirable seat in the room and put him on the most trivial committees. If Mr. Morrow were entering the service of a private institution, his rank would be at the head of it.

Aside from the commotions generated by the senate, some fairly important matters will emerge in Washington this week. On Monday, the one most dignified forums in Washington or in the United States, the supreme court, will entertain a motion from the solicitor general of the United States to reverse the decision of the New Jersey district court which a few weeks ago held the prohibition amendment unconstitutional.

Some time during the week the 11 university officials, eminent lawyers, judges and others, who compose the president's commission on law enforcement, probably will make their report. That report of the Wickersham commission, when it appears during the week, will probably enlist such public interest as will temporarily overshadow the divers senate commotions.

MASON'S GRANDSON IS KILLED BY AUTO

Carlos Chandler Mason, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Mason, of Miami, Fla., and a grandson of Claud Mason, chief clerk in the Fulton county ordinary's office, was killed Sunday morning by an automobile in the Florida city, according to advices received here.

The child had returned from an auto ride with his parents. It was said, and was running across the street in front of the residence when a machine ran him down. Identity of the driver of the death car was not available here.

The body will be brought here Tuesday night and funeral services will be announced at that time by Harry G. Poole.

The Other Bullet

By Nancy Barr Mavity

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

"No, I shan't get rid of it," he said. He had taken up the Chinese box and moved over to the book case with it. "My life is worth—precisely that. He dropped the box almost casually behind a row of books as he spoke. 'It's queer how we cling to life—and yet cling to danger, too.' That ring may yet cost me my life some day. But you see I do trust you. I've let you see where I keep it. If anything should happen to me—accidentally—I'd like to have you come and get it, though in that event I'd rather you'd just keep it for your own and say nothing to anyone. That would be the ending—the unsatisfactory ending you could tell your grandchildren." He smiled at that.

"Oh, but I don't want it—not like that," I said. It hurt me that he should talk in that hard, flippant way about giving me the ring after his death. "Well, believe me, it would be a more satisfactory ending than any other," he said, still with that grim, ironic smile. "I may not have the pleasant fortune to die accidentally—and in that case I greatly fear that some one else not half so charming as yourself will already have possession of the ring."

"And now—he's dead—and the ring is gone!" Aline ended with a gasp. "Where—where?" Peter exclaimed. "It does look as if we've got hold of something. You think it really belonged to him—that he hadn't stolen it, for instance?"

"No, he didn't steal it," Aline said quietly. "People's moral codes are funny things. Don Morrison could not resist taking love, though it threw the wreckage of others' lives all about him, but he wouldn't have stolen a piece of jewelry. It simply couldn't be done!"

The bitterness of her tone recalled to Peter's mind the thing that had been puzzling him. "Yet you were to go to no end of trouble to bring his murderer to justice," he said, answering her tone rather than her words.

"I've told you that I want to find my letters," Aline said stiffly. "Yes, that's all right as far as it goes," Peter assented. "But I've a hunch that you're not going into this just for your own advantage. Of course, the less I know, the less good I'll be. Still, if you don't care to trust me—"

He made a feint of turning the car back into the road, as if the incident were closed. But Aline reached out a restraining hand and laid it almost timidly on his arm. "It isn't that," she said in a choking voice. "It won't help any, and I don't want to say it, for fear I'd seem to be making excuses. It's just—true, that's all. You see, I really did try to kill Don. It is only an accident that you're not going into this just for your own advantage. Of course, the less I know, the less good I'll be. Still, if you don't care to trust me—"

"Don't count too much on what we can do," Peter warned her. "A man who has purposely hidden his past makes it all too easy for someone to emerge from that past and then hide himself again. I agree with you that the ring is the key to both the murdered man and the murderer. Only we haven't got the ring!"

"There must be ways of finding it," Aline insisted. "Newspapermen are always finding things out."

"The things they find out get put in the paper," Peter explained gloomily. "The things they miss, just aren't published!"

Jimmy Sears knew well that that abysmal gloom of Peter's, and knew that it preceded a burst of prodigious activity, in which patience burned with a steady flame. Once, when a key witness had tried to fix a crucial date by referring to a certain advertisement which he remembered seeing in some newspaper read at the public library, Peter had gone over all the files for a period of three years, until he found it. When Jimmy had called him off the job in despair, he had gone back to the library in the evenings and continued the search on his own time.

"An old photograph and a lost ring—those two things are all we've got to help us discover the identity of the man who took a great deal of pains to keep anyone from doing that very thing," he groaned. "Why, for the matter, the two may have no connection with each other."

Aline's hand tightened on his arm. "But they do!" she said urgently. "That's how I recognized the bits of gold chasing that hadn't been rubbed off the photograph frame. It's the same monogram, and the same coat of arms, that I saw on the ring!"

"You're a hell of a newspaperman, you are!" Jimmy Sears pushed his green celluloid eyeshade up from his forehead until his rust-colored hair spread across it like a layer of undisturbed snow. He viewed Peter with an air of heavy sarcasm.

"What's the matter now?" Peter lounged across the front of the city desk, one elbow planted in the wire basket of carbon copies, undisturbed by the grimace of disgust which twisted Jimmy's face as if he were a small boy who had been forced to swallow a dose of castor oil.

"With all the drag you had up there, couldn't you fix it any better than for the jury to go out at night, letting all the morning papers get the verdict first? After the way you worked for that verdict, too?"

If they'd convicted that dame, after the kind of stories we were running, I'd have fired you, Peter—fired you for inefficiency, so help me!"

"The verdict?" Peter's eyes were fixed on vacancy, with the blank brightness of the near-sighted when gazing into the distance. "Yes, the verdict! There was a little murder story that you were covering, you know. Jimmy leaned forward and peered upward at Peter's inattentive face. He considered, and dismissed, the idea that Peter was drunk.

"Oh, that!" Peter waved his hand vaguely, tipping the basket of carbon on its side. Mechanically he gathered the loose sheets from the top of the desk and tossed them back into the basket. Jimmy's smoky-blue eyes were no longer fierce. Something was seriously wrong with Peter, or he would never come back from winning a verdict he'd been working for, and act as if he had forgotten what it was all about. Any one who had ever surprised that look in Jimmy's eyes forgave him for demanding the impossible (and getting it), for exploding in furious profanity over a wrongly handled story, for slaying the reporter who so much as mentioned a desire for food or sleep when a big story was on, for dancing from one foot to the other in front of the typewriter if the man who had five minutes to make a deadline, for putting the Herald in place of Jehovah and decreeing, "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me."

Jimmy had accepted it as the natural and expected thing when one of his men was caught in a train collision, extricated himself with a broken leg, insisted that one of the ambulances rushed to the scene should drive him to the Herald office, and, having been assisted to his desk by the elevator boy, had written the first story of the crash before being taken to the hospital.

Conference Basketball Season Slated To Get Real Start This Week

THOMAS TAKES IMMEDIATE CHARGE OF TIDE

COURT SEASON IN CONFERENCE SET FOR START

Sewanee's Leaders Face Opposition From Many Good Quintets.

By Herb Clark.

With schools all through Dixie opening their doors again today, to young men who have spent the past two weeks rehearsing the past three months for the benefit of the "folks" and with wandering basketball players mingling with the returning throngs, the Southern conference court season is slated to get off to a real and earnest start about dark this evening.

That season was gently pushed off its static date last week in a few scattered games. And Sewanee's purple-clad Tigers flashed a bright red warning to its 22 brethren of the league by handing Tulane a double defeat and taking a firm stand at the top of the listings of the moment.

Kentucky and Georgia, opening their schedules Saturday night, won, respectively, from Clemson and South Carolina to tie for second place.

Sewanee's quintet leaves conference circles for a time to polish up against S. I. A. and independent teams. They leave the field wide open for a bunch of ambitious teams—and may, in view of their fine start—rue the move.

Georgia's Bulldogs rest up for a few days and start back into action Friday night at Gainesville, Fla., where they open a two-game series with the Florida quintet, not highly rated this year.

The Bulldogs may easily step ahead of the Tigers.

Tech, just back from a road trip on which a number of the east's major teams were met—with some small measure of ledger success and far more in the lining up of the team—starts conference action Wednesday night against South Carolina.

The Gamblers began a southern swing Saturday in Athens which takes them to Alabama Monday for the week's first game, to Auburn Tuesday and here Wednesday.

A number of teams—not the least important of which are Tech and Georgia—showed real quality during the holiday week and stayed with Sewanee in holding the battle pennant. The war engines are ready, they say, at Vandy, Tennessee, Duke and Kentucky.

Other clubs, among them last year's champion Alabama five, won less success but are still available for the disposing of titles.

Y. M. C. A. Meets
Furman Tonight.

Two of the speediest basketball teams in Georgia and South Carolina will meet at 8:30 o'clock tonight when the Purple Hurricane five from Furman plays the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. Triangles. It will be the first of a series of four matinee games for local fans this week and will be followed by a Furman-J. P. C. game Tuesday night on the J. P. C. court.

Furman has been playing through its college season last year undefeated and showed its power clearly in a 29-24 victory over the Atlanta Athletic Club team Saturday night.

The Triangles have been playing together for some time and have a well-balanced team. The offensive strength is well divided.

Furman will probably line up with Wells and Southern at forwards; Woot at center; and a pair of Rankin at guards. Y. M. C. A. will start with Tasker and Brock at forwards; Fincher at center, and Merritt and Green at guards.

EX-STARS DIES.
WATERBURY, Conn., Jan. 4.—(P)—Roger A. Conner, a former star basketball player of the New York Giants, and famous home run hitter two decades ago, died at his home here today.

Bear Deal Near Close—Douglas

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 4.—(P)—Milton Stock, who is to manage the proposed Mobile club of the Southern association this season, said tonight that the league informed in a long-distance telephone conversation by C. Byrd Douglas, Nashville attorney, that he had practically completed all financial arrangements in the proposed purchase of controlling interest in the Mobile franchise of the Southern baseball association and hoped to be prepared tomorrow to formally announce consummation of the deal.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 4.—(P)—John D. Martin, president of the Southern association, announced tonight that the league directorate will reconvene in Memphis Tuesday unless negotiations involving the Little Rock and Mobile clubs concluded satisfactorily tomorrow.

Oglethorpe Five To Know Fate Soon

Oglethorpe's 1931 basketball season hangs in the balance today as all of the grades for the first semester's work will be made known soon after school convenes this morning. Several of the star performers on the court last year were very close to the danger line during examination time. The student body anxiously awaits the final decision today, when all returns come in. It is likely that a basketball team will be dropped and a program of intra-mural sports substituted.

HARPER PLACES HOPES IN SPEED

Conceding 20 Pounds,
Paul May Yet Beat
Zaharias.

Paul Harper will be outweighed about 20 pounds when he steps in the ring Wednesday night for his grappling contest with George Zaharias, "The Human Truck."

Harper, however, believes that his superior speed and skill will enable him to outlast the big fellow in the match. At least that is Harper's plan and Zaharias will hardly profit any by knowing it.

Harper is undoubtedly faster than Zaharias. He possesses more skill. Whether this will enable him to outlast the big fellow is problematical. Zaharias is more powerful and this will tell unless Harper shows really magnificent defensive power.

Zaharias holds all but punishing ones and weakens an opponent considerably because of his tremendous strength and ability to hold on against ordinary escapes.

Harper won on a foul from Zaharias in a previous match at the Auditorium, and this has added to the interest in the match. Zaharias was genuinely aroused, and still is. The match will be hot from the start.

"Dynamite" Blackstock, who appears to have learned the old game of "give and take" real well, will meet Bill Middlekaff in the semi-windup. The latter, who was a star fullback at Florida and later a star at Southern, was a member of the West football team at Los Angeles under the direction of Coach Alexander McGugin and Wade, has a large following here.

He will be the popular favorite to win, but on physical facts the match appears about even.

The wrestling fans, some 5,000 of them, are expected to have about two-thirds of their membership present Wednesday. The show is a high-class one. Tickets are on sale today at the Candler building soda fountain and at the Piedmont Hotel. Ladies will be admitted to any seat in the auditorium for $1.

Len Harvey To Make Garden Debut Friday

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(P)—The American debut of Len Harvey, British middleweight champion, and a junior lightweight championship battle share interest in this week's national boxing schedule.

Harvey meets Vince Dundee, of Baltimore, in the feature 12-round bout on Madison Square Garden's card Friday night. Harvey has compiled an imposing record in 10 years of fighting abroad. His handlers say he has been beaten only once in 350 engagements. Dundee, a brother of the former welterweight champion, is an efficient workman, especially at close quarters.

Dave Shade, hardy middleweight veteran, engages Joe Anderson, of Covington, Ky., in the 10-round semi-final, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., former featherweight titleholder, engages Joe Pobbis for his supper. But the modern poacher or game box is often so prosperous that he is forced to work in airplanes, automobiles or high-powered speedboats which help him to increase both the amount of his slaughter and the efficiency of catching him, according to officials of the American Game Protective Association.

The increasing use of modern transportation means by poachers enables them to reach and leave the hunting grounds before they can be apprehended and assists them in their illicit practices as market shooting, blind shooting and the snaring of ducks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(P)—The poacher has gone modern.

Time was when the poacher was a staid fellow who occasionally bagged one of the quire's rabbits for his supper. 'PEA SOUP FOG' OVER HEAVIES TO BE CLEARED

Jacobs and New York
Commission Will Swing Fan Tuesday.

By Henry McLemore,

United Press Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(UP)—The pea soup fog which now hovers over the heavyweight boxing situation in this state and city is likely to be cleared away by nightfall on Tuesday.

Of course the pea soup fog may be replaced by a fresh supply of A-1 double-dipped extra-dense smoke but at least the clearing will enjoy a brief change in atmosphere.

Tuesday, around high noon, Joseph Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, will answer the New York boxing commission's ultimatum that the German champion agree at once to meet Jack Dempsey in Boston, in a title bout, or else.

The commission has never fully explained that ominous "or else," but everybody agrees that if Jacobs says "no" the commission will declare the title vacant and Max will be without a championship in this and other states where work hand in hand with the New York body.

JOE'S STAND.

Unless Jacobs has a change of heart, he will tell the commissioners that he does not care to agree to a bout with Sharkey or anyone else at this early date, but would prefer to wait until 90 days before the date for a title fight and then agree to meet the outstanding challenger.

It is Jacobs' contention that anyone capable of naming the outstanding challenger four months in advance is wasting his time in boxing and should be doing a turn at fancy prices in the country's various music halls.

Exactly what will happen if Jacobs says "no" and the title is vacated nobody knows. But that hasn't kept anybody from taking a few guesses.

THE GUESSES.

According to one school of guessing, Schmeling and Schmeling will meet in Miami for the title. Another school predicts that the same pair will meet in Miami.

Still another, and this one seems the best of the lot, is that Stribling and Carnera will meet in Miami with the winner getting a shot at Schmeling in Solingfield, Chicago.

Those that favor the latter turn of events say the Stribling-Carnera bout will be handled by Frank January Bruen, one-time general manager of Madison Square Garden, and one of Miami's most popular citizens.

QUITE A ROLL.

Jacobs craves to show his man figure in Chicago as a result of his knockout of Von Porat and decision over Griffiths.

Jacobs believes, and he is not alone in the belief, that Schmeling and Sharkey, after their dismal bout here last year, would do well to pack a piano box in this part of the country.

Modern Poachers

HOMEWARD BOUND WITH THE ALABAMA FOOTBALL TEAM, Jan. 4.—After a long day of skimming over the cactus wastes of western Texas, always in front of a backdrop of property mountains, and after an evening of merrymaking along the length of the special train, the young men from Tuscaloosa and their friends awoke late Sunday and peered out of the window.

The theatrical mountains were gone. The desert had been rolled away. It was raining. They rumbled over a bridge that spanned a river that actually had water in it and boats tied up at the banks.

A Chevrolet was stuck in the mud of a country road and three men were prizing it out with fence rails. Trees draped in Spanish moss lined the tracks. Water stood deep between rows of cotton stalks.

Rain, mud and water never looked so good as it did to these stalwart sons of old Alabama. They were close to home.

"Ears" Whitworth, who kicked that placement goal, charged up and down the train telling about seeing that Chevrolet stuck in the mud.

NO POST-MORTEMS.

It was to him the symbol of civilization.

Through a strange psychological quirk the people of this special train have not talked much of the game.

If Alabama had lost, perhaps the game would have been played over and over again.

But little has been said of the battle that was a spectacular, significant victory.

THIS BEN SMITH.

Observers who had followed Georgia, Tulane, Tech and Vanderbilt through many games united in declaring that Ben Smith played as fine a game at end as they had seen this year.

The big fellow never was passed by a Cougar play. He utterly wrecked their running attack on one side.

And his feat in catching the pass that led to the second touchdown with two Cougars hanging to him was the finest single exploit of the game.

Smith was a halfback a year ago, when Wade turned him over to Jess Neely for special instructions.

His performance in the conference championship campaign was marked by steady improvement. His game in the Rose Bowl was a credit to the player and Coach Neely.

AND DID THEY?

Freddie Sington was pretty slow in charging for the first few days of the practice in California, the big All-American looked lazy and indifferent.

Hank Crisp said to him one day, "Freddie, you can't break through the Washington State line by showing them your clippings."

Freddie blushed and said nothing but speeded his charge.

The day of the game Crisp was talking with Sington again, "This Edwards of Washington State is the best tackle you boys have met. Watch out for him."

To which Sington replied, "Yeah, we ought to have a great battle of clippings."

EIGHT POOR DERELICTS.

Eight of the party were left behind in Juarez, according to a final check up Saturday night. Whether they caught the second special 45 minutes behind the team train is not known.

The charms of wandering through the quaint shops, or what will you have, of the old Mexican city proved one or two too much for several young men.

Others perhaps became confused with the change in time from mountain to central.

TECH BANQUET AND NEW COACH ON WEEK'S CARD

Jack Cannon's Name Persists
in Discussion of Alex's Aid.

Georgia Tech's football banquet

Friday night is likely to provide the announcement of the new line coach for the 1931 Jackets.

No announcement has been made which might tend to identify the line coach but the name of Jack Cannon, last fall freshman coach at Auburn, continues to be identified with the persistent reports which one encounters at all the football conversational spots.

The Jackets will meet Friday night to wind up the football business so far as the boys are concerned. They will elect a captain and an alternate for the 1931 season to succeed Captain Earl Dunlap and Alternate Tom Jones, both of whom graduate this spring.

Bob Dadd, the Tennessee ace, has already been signed as backfield coach and is expected to be present. If possible Tech officials will make known the new line coach at the banquet so that all may be serene and calm until the start of spring practice late in January or early in February.

The Jackets will make their football banquet a campus affair, holding it in the beautiful new dining hall. Letter winners of the past season will elect the captain.

The freshmen and the reserves will also be guests at the banquet. The freshmen will be honor guests so far as the alumni are concerned. The freshmen include in their number some players who are expected to make the varsity more formidable in 1931 than it was during the past campaign.

The banquet will also be the last formal appearance of Vance Mack, Earl Dunlap, Tom Jones, Fred Holt and Hudson Edwards.

Complete plans for the banquet will be announced this week.

Norfolk, Richmond
In Eastern League

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(P)—Two Virginia cities, Norfolk and Richmond, were admitted to membership in the Eastern baseball league at a special meeting here today.

William E. Carey, president of the league, said the two cities had met all the league's requirements and had purchased franchises. The league now has a membership of six, with Albany, Allentown, Springfield and Bridgeport as the other members.

Carey intimated the circuit would operate as an eight-city league with two more cities yet to be admitted.

One of the two cities expected to gain membership is Hartford, Conn., while the other will be selected from a list of several applicants, Carey said.

Another special meeting will be held in New York, probably in about 10 days, when it is expected the other two clubs will be admitted.

Guard Tilts Moved,
White Poloists Win

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 4.—(P)—The White team of the 11th field artillery polo players defeated the Red team this afternoon by a score of 5 goals to 2, in a hard-fought game.

Coleman and Zealy scored three goals for the winners.

It was announced at the game that the contemplated series of polo matches between the artillery and the Governor's Horse Guards, of Tech High, originally planned for this month here, could not be arranged for January but would take place later in the season.

Antelope Ranching
Business Is Good,

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Who wants a nice herd of antelope for his back yard?

Candidates with the right kind of back yards—containing a few thousand acres of grazing lands—are invited to line up at the right place, help V. P. Sullivan, stockman and banker of Square Butte, Mont., solve the question of what to do with an overly-successful game preserve.

Frank Ball Shares In Money at Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4.—Frank Ball, of Atlanta, professional at East Lake Country Club, Bobby Jones' home course, stroked his way to a 75 and 77 today for a 72-hole total of 205 and a one-third share of ninth position in the annual Miami open golf tournament.

Ball was tied with Eddie Harmon of Cleveland, and Art Riley, of St. Louis. Each received a $25 share in the prize money.

THOMAS TAKES TITLE AT MIAMI

Williams, Farrell, Ciuci
Tie for Second in Golf Meet.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4.—(P)—In a stirring finish at sunset, Joe Turnesa, Elmford, N. Y., professional, today won the Miami open golf championship, with a score of 294 for the 72 holes.

Starting the final 36 holes today, one stroke behind Eddie Williams, Cleveland pro, Turnesa played a deliberate, steady game to beat down the bids of Johnny Farrell, Mamoreck, N. Y.; Henri Ciuci, Stratford, Conn.; and Joe Hutchison, Ill., of whom came from behind to threaten.

After 63 holes, Turnesa was tied with Williams and Farrell for the leadership with 268, and Ciuci was just a stroke back. Jack Hutchison, Chicago, also had a chance with a 261.

Two threesomes ahead of Williams and Farrell, Turnesa played a deliberate, steady game to beat down the bids of Johnny Farrell, Mamoreck, N. Y.; Henri Ciuci, Stratford, Conn.; and Joe Hutchison, Ill., of whom came from behind to threaten.

The word came back that Turnesa had gone in with a 294. Farrell needed a par 4 to tie the championship and Williams and Ciuci needed birdies.

It was so dark they had to put a white handkerchief in the cup to guide the putting eye. Farrell misjudged the distance in the darkness, overrunning the cup on his putt and took a 5. Ciuci and Williams took dazzling par fours, but the title was already in Turnesa's bag.

The struggle left Farrell, Williams and Ciuci, bracketed with 295's, dividing second, third and fourth money. Next came Hutchison, who had slipped on the final 18, requiring a 298.

Jack Toomer, Jacksonville, led the amateurs with a 300.

Resumption of Drills
Set for Prep Squads

With the opening of city schools this morning, activities in prep athletics will begin to buzz immediately. There is plenty of practice to be done in basketball and track and all the coaches have indicated that no time will be lost in whipping the teams into shape for spring events.

Basketball will occupy the major part of the attention for the next several weeks at least.

Boys' High, back from its successful invasion of Houston, Texas, defeated a Houston All-Star team 10-0, in a New Year's charity game, will start basketball this afternoon, as will Tech High.

Both Coaches of Boys' High, and Claude Tolbert, of Tech High, have postponed the basketball work until this week as their football season's extended well beyond the usual time.

G. M. A., the other member of the "big three," has done considerable work in the past week with a few days of intensive scrimmaging. The Cadets will be ready for action.

Only nine days remain before the resumption of the spring season and work will be speeded as much as possible.

U. S. G. A. Leaders
To Meet Saturday

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(UP)—The annual meeting of the United States Golf Association will be held Saturday with more than 200 delegates from all parts of the country in attendance.

With no action expected to be taken in regard to Bobby Jones and his position on the executive committee, the main business of the meeting will be the selection of officers. H. H. Ramsay, Southampton, N. Y., has been named to succeed Findlay Douglas as president. Prescott Bush has been nominated for secretary and Charles H. Sabin for treasurer.

Jones is expected to be elected to the executive committee again. Under the by-laws of the association there is nothing to prevent Jones from retaining his position.

WADE TO LEAVE CAPSTONE SOON, DANFORTH SAYS

Tangle of Contracts Is Cleared Up In Conference.

By Ed Danforth,

Sports Editor.

HOMEWARD BOUND WITH THE ALABAMA FOOTBALL TEAM, Jan. 4.—Announcement will be made shortly from Tuscaloosa that Wallace Wade, head football coach for over seven years, will leave the campus about January 15 and that Frank Thomas will take over the Crimson squad for spring practice.

This was learned on good authority today after both Wade and Thomas had several lengthy conferences with Dr. George Denny, president of the university. The agreements reached await only sanction of the athletic board but this is expected to be given about Tuesday.

Thus a tangle in contracts, which for a time threatened awkward complications will be cleared up.

Coach Wade's contract did not expire as head coach at the Capstone until September 1, while Coach Thomas had signed as head coach for over seven years, will leave the campus about January 15 and that Frank Thomas will take over the Crimson squad for spring practice.

It is understood that before leaving Tuscaloosa Coach Wade was offered a cash settlement to leave after the Rose Bowl game and that the consideration was unsatisfactory to Wade.

In fact, he stood pat to fulfill his contract. This, of course, would have created an impossible situation.

The settlement was made possible by generous concessions from both parties. Presumably all is serene again.

PLANS UNKNOWN.

It is not yet known when Coach Wade will go to Duke to assume charge. His contract with Durham institution does not take effect until September 1.

He intends to take a long vacation, the first he has enjoyed in over seven years.

Just what his assistants at Duke will be are not known. He may go to Durham soon for a business conference with his new employers.

Frank Thomas, the new Alabama coach, has finished his contract at Georgia, where he was backfield coach, and made the trip to coast at invitation of the president of the university to see his future players in action.

Thomas remained modestly in the background for the entire time and carried off his part of a difficult condition very gracefully. Central News Service reported that between him and Coach Wade, Thomas talked with at least one Notre Dame player in California about coaching at Tuscaloosa as an assistant but reached no agreement.

It is rumored that he intends offering the assistant posts to both Wade and Coach Wade. Proprietor, who were Wade's assistants.

The entire staff probably will be determined by the time Coach Wade remains as athletic director, as previously announced.

Tide Acclaimed
By New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4.—(P)—The city of New Orleans today welcomed and acclaimed the University of Alabama football team, on its way home after defeating the Washington State Cougars at the Pasadena Rose Bowl.

The Crimson Tide paused only a few minutes, but in that short period they were extended the city's official congratulations. The trip back to Tuscaloosa was then resumed.

Satin Spar Captures
Hollywood Handicap

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 4.—(P)—Satin Spar, four-year-old gelding from the Bill Bee stable of Willard Mack, playwright, won the Hollywood handicap, first purse of $10,000, in a winter meeting of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club here today.

Satin Spar ran the mile over a slow track in 1:31. He was ridden by a long and one-half from Nellie Custis. Lamp-Black got the show.

New Quarters Dedicated By National Women's Party

Leaders Recall Old Suffrage Days and Look to Pending Fight for Equal Rights.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(P)—The old purple, white and gold banners of the feminist forces gleamed again today in a sunny noontime ceremony dedicating the new headquarters of the National Women's Party.

Through the speeches the post-suffrage rallying cry of the party sounded a demand for the equal rights amendment on which hearings will be held Tuesday before the senate judiciary committee.

Held aloft by more than 40 girl bearers in flowing capes, the very standards and streamers used in picketing the White House 11 years ago made a colorful foreground to Mrs. Belmont house, described as "both a laboratory and a museum of feminism."

From a second-story doorway above that mass of color, speakers over the National Broadcasting Company radio network lauded the leadership of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the party and donor of the old brick capitol headquarters whose advantageous sale in condemnation proceedings made possible the purchase of the handsome and historic brick building dedicated today.

Mrs. Harvey Wiley, national chairman of the women's party, reading a greeting from Mrs. Belmont, now in Paris, concluded with the presentation of a $10,000 check from her to be used toward construction of an equal rights auditorium.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, republican floor leader, introduced as the "women's champion in the old suffrage days," asserted women had proved a conservative rather than a revolutionary factor in politics.

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, introduced as one "who has always stood for the advancement of women," described a suffrage crusader's parade down Pennsylvania avenue 18 years ago, and added that much for which they marched was now accomplished.

Miss Doris Stevens, who was closely associated with Mrs. Belmont in the suffrage fight, made the personal dedication to her of the old Georgian brick mansion on property bought by George Thompson from Lord Baltimore in 1663, and subsequent home for distinguished families of Maryland and later of the national capitol.

MONTGOMERY STAR IN PICTURE AT FOX

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production, "War Nurse," starring Robert Montgomery, supported by a cast including Anita Page, Robert Ames, etc., Fox moviehouse, a screen comedy and a Mickey Mouse episode complete the bill.

Fanchon and Marco brought a show to town Saturday, "Hollywood Collegians," an aggregation of versatile youngsters boasting mastery to wind and string instruments, assisted by Dorothy Crocker, reel off enough entertainment to satisfy.

The feature picture, "War Nurse," is a dramatic depiction of the woes of a small band of American girls who, unorganized and unhelped, abandon security of home and go to France to nurse and console the sick and wounded.

This Montgomery boy, Robert, tosses aside trapeze and cocktail shakers for a natty aviator's uniform and machine guns and handles the part to perfection. His portrayal of Wally in this picture probably is his best acting of a career which has made him one of the most popular male screen stars.

The members of his supporting cast are at their best. The human element is brought out without the severity and uncouthness which too often mars the story of man and woman's desire for love—a love that never says die.

Enrico Leide's special arrangement of the popular "Glow Worm" drew forth the unanimous applause of a capacity house.

RUTH CHATTERTON ADDS TO LAURELS

RUTH CHATTERTON, America's First Lady of the Screen, in "The Right to Love," is the feature offering at the Keith Georgia for the week. The vaudeville act, a first-class comedy, and with the bill is a crazy cartoon novel, and two newscasts.

Not content with the plethora of laurels with which she has been crowned for her heretofore marvelous performances in single roles, Ruth Chatterton has gone double to play mother and daughter in "The Right to Love," and, as most everyone would have to do so superbly that her directors must now seek other cinema works for her to conquer.

She comes along in the picture at the Georgia for the week, packing such powerful punches in a play that begins and ends as it should, to steal away whatever interest the audience might have in meeting, for the first time, Western Electric's new noiseless recording. In the first few minutes, while her lines are without special interest—although necessary to note the onward march of science, but when the other characters have been introduced and you begin to follow Chatterton through, noiseless recording becomes quite incidental.

Not alone is she great because she essays, with a magnificent grasp of artistry, a difficult double role, but she is greater because of the masterful way she handles a story that contains a paucity of unnatural lines. In both speech and gesture it is the faithful chronology of the stark realism which traces its fangs back to the first clash of the裴林s in about the time of the fifth and sixth of the Mayflower boats landed on the New England coast.

On the stage are four excellent vaudeville acts varying in value according to individual taste. Pop Cameron and his gang have an act which the audience seems to like best, but the hardworking Berkoffs, Russians, polish off a dancing act with charming talent. Don Galvan is a Spanish soloist who, not necessarily magnanimously, keeps the customers reminded that Joe Bell conducts a good orchestra.

It is a bang-up show. —R. E. POWELL.

TODAY CRITICAL POINT IN BRITISH LABOR CRISIS

Coal and Cotton Industries Likely to Know Strike Decisions Soon.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(P)—Tomorrow will be a critical day in two great British industries, coal and cotton. Failure has met all efforts between miners and operators to end the South Wales coal dispute, in which 140,000 miners quit work last week and thereby increased the number of idle in the field to about 230,000. Tomorrow the men only to their direct threat to the government. It is believed Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will take personal part in the proceedings.

The miners voted to quit work after the owners insisted that wages be reduced in order to compensate for a new schedule of shorter hours. In the cotton industry of the Lancashire area, leaders of the weavers have threatened to withdraw their men from all mills where the eight looms-per-weaver system goes into effect tomorrow. The weavers object to attending eight looms instead of four, as previously, on the ground that the new system will increase unemployment but ultimately will bring reduction in wages.

Not content with the plethora of laurels with which she has been crowned for her heretofore marvelous performances in single roles, Ruth Chatterton has gone double to play mother and daughter in "The Right to Love," and, as most everyone would have to do so superbly that her directors must now seek other cinema works for her to conquer.

He gave no reason but it was assumed that the weather was unfavorable.

General Balbo's squadron has been at Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, for two weeks preparing for the south Atlantic hop. Italian war craft will line the route which will terminate at Port Natal, Brazil.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, The News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(NANA)—The bright lights which have illuminated the bear party thrown by one big bear to another at a certain pent house overlooking the snow-covered slopes of Central park from the south had hardly been dimmed when the stock market opened another, strong and active session yesterday in which new high prices for the current advance were registered.

It was the consensus of those attending the party, including Matt, Tom, George and Ben, that the bear market was over for the next two or three months. Some of them even thought that the market would go up. Aside from the decision made by railroad executives regarding the eastern trunk line consolidation, the most favorable development market-wise is the cessation of professional bear pressure. It was really bear attacks which brought the market down to the final stages so that the lifting of this pressure will permit of constructive operations which heretofore were not open to the largest investors especially in issues in which constructive operations were known by the bears to be under way.

In at least two important places it became known Saturday that the Morgan associates were taking a constructive view of the market for the first time in months. It was declared that one of the partners of the corner house had advised the sale of bonds in the production of a new proceeds into common stocks. Inasmuch as the so-called Morgan associates have been conspicuous for their absence in the stock market for a year, the news is taken as a constructive view of the security markets were received with much jubilation in the street.

Warner Makes New Top. Stocks of amusement companies under leadership of Warner Brothers Pictures continued to make new top figures for the current advance movement. Speculative interest in this group is being stimulated by knowledge that earnings are making a very good showing at this time, in fact, breaking new records for this season of year. One of the largest commission houses in the Street sent a flash to its customers in various parts of the country stating that it expected Warner Brothers Pictures to have a substantial advance this week.

Cutten Buying Sears-Roebuck. Some of the big bull operators who took a prominent part in the last bull market are reported to be coming back into the market. Arthur Cutten was rumored to be accumulating Sears-Roebuck stock. Important Detroit interests were reported to be contemplating a constructive movement in Baldwin Locomotive, while the Raschold-Pont-Warner group were declared to be bonding every effort to place Warner Brothers Pictures at higher levels in keeping with their views of the intrinsic value of the stock.

Motor stocks continued strong coincident with the opening of the motor show. Important Chicago grain operators are bullish on the grain market.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN GERMAN RIOTING

ESSEN, Germany, Jan. 4.—(P)—Clashes over the week-end in the Ruhr district claimed two lives and sent 15 miners and communist agitators to hospitals.

At Linforth a mob of communist strikers stormed a police station to demand the release of two arrested leaders. One worker was killed and 12 others were wounded in the resulting skirmish.

Communists at Mengerslo clashed with workers who refused to join the "wild strike." One miner was shot dead and three others were wounded.

74-Year Chart of Bond Yields Shows Trade Recovery Near

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(P)—Business recovery apparently cannot be many months away, is the conclusion indicated by the results of a four-year investigation of the trend of bond yields over a period of 74 years, authorized for publication by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

"While it is no part of the work of the national bureau to make forecasts of business conditions," it says, "It seems eminently proper to summarize the results of our investigations of past experiences." The investigation shows that with the exception of a recent and evidently temporary interruption, bond yields have been declining since September, 1929, and that such a decline in the past has been the usual forerunner of business recovery.

The 74-year chart of bond yields, based on high-grade railroad obligations, is a part of an investigation which Dr. Fred H. Macaulay, of the staff of the bureau, has been conducting for four years, and which includes the relationships of bond yields, interest rates, stock prices and general business since January, 1857. Dr. Macaulay is an economist who is widely known for his scientific treatment of the history of the money market. He is the son of T. B. Macaulay, president and managing director of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, one of the largest investors in the American security markets. The bureau, a non-commercial organization supported by such scientific institutions as the Rockefeller Foundation, has decided to release the bond figures in advance of publication of Dr. Macaulay's general study "in view of the public interest at the present moment" and because it considers the bond yield index the most useful of those compiled.

A chart of the movements of Dr. Macaulay's bond yield index clearly shows the peaks which have fore-shadowed periods of business depression, and the downswing which was the forerunner of recovery. In the case of the 1907 depression, when there was no complicating factors such as currency unsettlement or wartime conditions, the action of the index is graphic. From a low of 3.44 in 1907, it rose to a peak of 4.062 in November of 1907. The index then moved steadily downward, reaching a bottom at 3.605 in February, 1909. By autumn of that year, general business activity was back to normal.

"Sequences of economic factors," as revealed by past history," says the bureau's bulletin, "often constitute almost the only means of attempting to predict the future." Such sequences, it adds, should be concerned with fundamentally important factors. It believes a fall in bond yields is more important than a rise in the price of stocks, which has long been regarded as an indicator of economic improvement. The bureau, a non-commercial organization supported by such scientific institutions as the Rockefeller Foundation, has decided to release the bond figures in advance of publication of Dr. Macaulay's general study "in view of the public interest at the present moment" and because it considers the bond yield index the most useful of those compiled.

Disposal of the seed is one problem yet to be solved. Dr. Cameron said he did not propose to lose them because of their by-products value and some method would be worked out to save them.

Methods of production are also revolutionary. The professor proposes to substitute the same operations as are now generally used in the growing of wheat and hay, eliminating laborious picking and harvesting the crop with a mowing machine.

Dr. Cameron said that of all plants cotton is probably the richest in available cellulose, the basic material of rayon. Ninety-five to ninety-eight per cent of the lint being cellulose, of a very high quality, suitable for conversion into the finest types of rayon.

The cost of cotton at present, the professor stated, as compared with wool pulp from which most of the cellulose for the manufacture of rayon is now being obtained, prevents its extensive use for the same purpose. He says this can be changed by revolutionary methods of production.

Two systems of growing cotton for the new industry, Dr. Cameron said, had been considered. One, to sow or broadcast as hay and some grains are planted. Secondly, to drill rows closely together.

The effects of these two new methods are expected on the strength of experimental evidence previously obtained to be, a smaller plant, relatively less stalk and more fruit, probably shorter fiber and a shortened maturing season.

Cotton thus raised, the professor said, would require no cultivation and since picking would be eliminated, it could easily be harvested with a mowing machine, as has already been done in the experiments performed on plants that had been grown, however, in the customary rows.

With their prohibition problem virtually solved, members of the Wickersham law enforcement commission were further today and predicted among their entire study of the nation's criminal law enforcement machinery, held by them "seriously inadequate," could be completed by July 1.

The few members in the capital today were chary of expressing opinions of their number are now prepared to recommend a further strengthening of prohibition enforcement rather than any relaxation of the dry laws.

Ward came from high official sources yesterday that a tentative prohibition report, agreeable to a majority, has been completed. It was described as suggesting no measures for repeal or modification to permit wine or beer.

The subsidiary and public utility companies of Standard Gas & Electric system supply electric light and power, gas, transportation, telephone, steam and water service in 20 states and 1,630 communities.

Commercial Factors Corporation reports the volume of business transacted during 1930 was $10,000,000, representing an increase of $12,000,000, or 11 per cent, over the previous year. The showing was made despite the fact that the textile fields in the United States have been affected by the decline in commodity prices and the statement points out that the corporation has brought about. Commenting on the 1931 outlook, Robert G. Blumenthal, president, said he considered it more promising for textile manufacturers than is generally realized.

Montgomery Ward & Co. today reported its Chicago sales for December of $28,724,841, compared with $27,750,210 for December, 1929, a decrease of $974,631, or nearly 3 1/2 per cent. Sales for the year totaled $272,319,025, compared with $261,330,621, a decrease of $11,000,000, or 4 1/2 per cent.

WICKERSHAM REPORT TO BE READY JULY 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(P)—With their prohibition problem virtually solved, members of the Wickersham law enforcement commission were further today and predicted among their entire study of the nation's criminal law enforcement machinery, held by them "seriously inadequate," could be completed by July 1.

The few members in the capital today were chary of expressing opinions of their number are now prepared to recommend a further strengthening of prohibition enforcement rather than any relaxation of the dry laws.

Business Now Seen in State Of Heathful Convalescence

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER,
Associated Press Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(P)—Industry and trade here in the past week entered upon a new fiscal period reconciled to the rules of convalescence.

This attitude contrasts strikingly with that overconfidence of a year ago, with its failure to foresee the consequences and implications of the major stock market operation which it had just undergone.

The spirit of business prophecy, chastened and undoubtedly made wiser by its mistakes of last year, has been abroad again around New Year's time. Its varied rappings, with few exceptions, agree that "sometime in 1931" business recovery is clearly visible, with spring frequently mentioned.

As long ago as 1927, Lord Overstreet described the various phases of the business cycle as quiescence, improvement, growing confidence, prosperity, excitement, overtrading, convulsion, pressure, stagnation, distress, ending again in quiescence. In commenting upon this description of the cycle, Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, of the Cleveland Trust Company, finds that it fits the developments of the past cycle with remarkable accuracy.

The convulsion, of course, came in the stock market crash late in 1929. Colonel Ayres indicates that the present distress has probably passed into the state of quiescence, from which improvement is being generated.

The weekly business statistics appearing over the turn of the year are marred by the effects of seasonal shut downs for inventories. But it is notable that most of the past week's statistics have shown somewhat less than the normal seasonal decline came out of a period already depressed, but probably also indicating growing resistance to downward pressure.

Building contracts, merchandise orderings, electric power output, steel production and check payments all held up well against the year-end influence. The weekly index of business activity compiled by McGraw-Hill's Business Week advanced from 76.9 per cent of normal to 77.8.

The full measure of holiday trade is yet to be taken, but the Federal Reserve Bank of New York estimates department store sales in this district for the first 24 days of December were only 4.2 per cent less than in 1929. In view of previous reductions of probably more than 10 per cent, it would appear that the actual physical volume of goods sold was higher than a year ago. Profit margins, however, were narrow.

Steel production was placed by Iron Age at 30 per cent for the Christmas holiday week, a sag of only 3 per cent. The volume of incoming orders is said in trade circles to promise quickening of operations as the month wears on, probably carrying output up to 50 per cent of capacity. Shutdowns over the New Year's week-end appear to have been less extensive than over the Christmas week-end. A step up of about 2 per cent in the Youngstown area is scheduled for this week. Plants there are feeling the increasing production in automobile centers. The Ford plants are resuming operations this week after a holiday shutdown.

There has been some improvement in commodity prices, particularly at the end of the week, when grains and cotton rallied along with the stock market. Copper prices have moved up 1-4 of a cent a pound and wholesale gasoline prices have been advanced 1-4 to 1-2 cent a gallon by leading companies in the east, the first concerted advance in months.

Increased shoe production is expected in January, but miscellaneous manufacturing activity generally is expected to improve gradually. Low inventories will help recovery in many cases, particularly cotton textiles, where output is being closely geared to consumption.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON STAGES LATE ADVANCE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 4.—(P)—The past week in the cotton market should properly be divided into two distinct periods.

The first period, that which preceded the New Year holiday, was featured by slack trading and narrow price fluctuations due to the fact that trading was largely confined to even-odd lots of cotton in advance of the holiday and the general disinclination to enter upon new ventures until after the turn of the year.

The second period or the time following the holiday was on the other hand featured by a fairly active business and a fairly sharp upturn in prices. This was due to the feeling of greater confidence caused by a sharp rally in the stock market and the covering of large short interests which led to a good deal of speculative trading between this market and New York.

While prices showed little net change during the first part of the week, fluctuations were fairly wide during the latter part and the week closed with prices about 30 points above the close of the preceding Saturday.

BOND LIST SHOWS MARKED BUOYANCY

BY DONALD C. BOLLES,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(P)—Bonds were under the spell of a combination of favorable influences last week, resulting in a sharp advance particularly in domestic issues.

In its breadth the buying was the best in several months, encompassing as it did both prime and medium bonds of railroads, utilities and industrials.

As gauged by the averages the week's rise amounted to about 2 per cent, and many bankers pointed to advance as indicating that the hysterical selling which turned the advance into a rout in the final quarter of the old had become a thing of the past. It was an encouraging sign to the financial community as a whole for recovery in stocks and business normally follows an advance in bond prices.

The turn of the year brought several developments that bore or should contribute to improvement in the price level and activity. The announcement from the White House that the four-o'clock line had settled the major points that have delayed consolidation for several years was a welcome tonic for railroad bonds.

Scattered toward the end of the week showed marked improvement following the announcement. Some of the prime rails duplicated or approached the high levels of a year ago. The second grade investment issues widened the margin between recent lows and current prices. Daily advances of from 1 to 3 points were not uncommon.

Monday for the March option. As a result of developments since the opening of the new year a much healthier undertone has prevailed and apparently all that is needed to establish a good advance is a revival of speculation on the constructive side of the market.

There was some improvement in the demand for spots during the past week with the inquiry coming mainly from domestic mills which are evidently preparing for a more active business when the new year gets well under way. The demand for export bonds has been very moderate exporters being still handicapped by the insufficient margin between Liverpool and the American markets.

The weekly statistics proved more encouraging than they have for many weeks past, particularly the better mill takings than expected and a decrease in the visible supply. The bullish character of the statistics helped the rally of the last part of the week.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago:

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(P)—The curb market's salutation to 1931 was the best rally in weeks. It exceeded in scope the technical upturn of December 17, when the junior exchange failed to reverse itself as completely as did the big board.

All groups displayed marked vigor as soon as the year-end tax selling had been completed in last Wednesday's session. The final hour of that day saw a volatile outburst in a handful of utilities and specialties, with American Gas & Electric soaring 18 points and two or three others nearly as much. Some of this buying was attributed to investment trusts seeking to make a good showing as possible in their year-end statements.

Resumption of trading on Friday witnessed an inclusive upturn in which oils and utilities took prominent places. The strength of the former group followed the announcement of higher wholesale gasoline prices and prompted extensive short covering in shares harboring a large bear group. Miscellaneous strong spots included Deere, Aluminum of America, A. O. Smith, Mead Johnson, the Ford issues and Wheatworth, the last named rising a dozen points in response to news of acquisition of the company by National Discount. Electric Bond & Share, the utilities' leader, touched 45, the best price in some time.

Investment trusts, heavily liquidated throughout most of 1930 and especially in the last few weeks of the year, got material assistance from the general rally.

"A population of 500,000 by 1935" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

THE CONSTITUTION'S WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON.

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

BEDDING COMPANY IMPROVES FACTORY

"We start this good year of 1931," says T. H. Moore, president of the Imperial Bedding Company, of 442 Cain street, N. E., "with a greater confidence in ourselves, and a fuller recognition of our responsibility to the people in the territory which we serve, and with this end in view, we took advantage of the holiday period, and made some improvements in our plant that will permit us to renovate mattresses now even faster than in the past."

"In order that the public may know our method of renovating a mattress, let us carry you in fancy along with us through the average routine of our work. Our phone rings, and a woman calls, requesting that we submit samples of new tickings or fancy coverings and prices. This is usually done in a few minutes, and when the cover selection is made, and price made satisfactory, the matter of how quick can the mattress be returned is next brought up, and we agree to bring it back at the time wanted."

"Just as soon as the old mattress reaches our plant, and it makes no difference if we receive it from a humble cottage or a palatial mansion, we put it into our big electrical sterilizer, where the heat is run up to 220 to 240 degrees, and no parasite, bug or germ will be alive over two minutes, after we close the big iron doors."

"Next we strip the old ticking off, and run the cotton or felt through a cotton gin that makes the cotton fluffy and soft again, like it was first ginned. All dust is now blown out by high pressure into a specially constructed dust room; this not only frees the cotton from all dust, but also prevents the dust from flying around and interfering with the health of our workmen. "The new sterilized and clean, soft cotton being picked up by several hundred small teeth on the winding drum, and then stripped off again on the opposite side by a stripper that causes the cotton to come off looking like a big cotton wool nearly five feet wide. This wool is then carried on an endless carrier nearly 20 feet, where it is overlapped 12 times, and now is called a cotton bat, and is wound up on as large a roll as the contents of the old mattress will make, which is usually around 46 pounds. We then cut this long, continuous roll up into as many bats as the roll will cut, which is usually about 12. These 12 felted mats are cut in the desired lengths, and the new covering put on and stitched up, and tufted in the same manner as a new mattress is made."

At this point Mr. Moore called attention to the fact that the old mattress might have been the ordinary mattress, and cost but a few dollars in the modern American home, binding closer together the family circle, and second, to the marvelous qualities of the Majestic radio.

Since the Majestic radio manufacturers placed on the market Model 31 it has been selling big, the Sterchi stores finding it practically impossible to keep a supply on hand to meet the demand. Nor is this the only model meeting with such popularity, for the Majestic radio may be purchased in many beautiful style cabinets in keeping with various types of home furnishings.

Mr. Almond says that it looks as if everybody is radio-minded, and they might be, for it's the cheapest and best entertainment, educational and otherwise, to be found, for one can turn the dial and choose the entertainment preferred, whether it's the glorious Alabama victory in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Cal.; Rudy Vallee in a crooning love song, or a million-dollar dance orchestra in one of the nation's most hospitable hotels.

Every Sterchi store is a headquarters for the Majestic radio. A complete line of all models is carried in the Sterchi stores in Atlanta, East Point, Macon, Athens, Rome, Bainbridge, Gainesville, Dalton, Thomas and Jacksonville, affording their hundreds of customers the opportunity of buying for their homes one of the best radios in the country on terms to suit their convenience.

STERCHI REPORTS MANY RADIO SALES

Joe Almond, manager of the radio department of the main store of Sterchi Bros., Inc., located at 142-150 Mitchell street, N. W., says that he has sold more radios during December than in any other one month since he began selling radios, four years ago.

Mr. Almond has won an enviable position in the southern radio field. He is at all times enthusiastic about the future of radio, attributing his increased sales, first, to the fact that radios are now a recognized necessity in the modern American home, binding closer together the family circle, and second, to the marvelous qualities of the Majestic radio.

Since the Majestic radio manufacturers placed on the market Model 31 it has been selling big, the Sterchi stores finding it practically impossible to keep a supply on hand to meet the demand. Quiet Returns to Food Riot Scene In Drouth-Devastated Arkansas

BY B. L. LIVINGSTONE. ENGLAND, Ark., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Drouth-impooverished farmers of these once fertile Arkansas river bottoms, 400 or more of whom yesterday descended upon this little village in grim search of food, were assured by local Red Cross officials today they would be cared for.

Coming to town in a body, backing up their demands for food with threats they would take it by force if necessary from the shelves of merchants, the hungry men and women were supplied with $1,500 worth of staples by the merchants.

Albert Walls, county Red Cross chairman, said today hastily scrawled requisitions passed out by the merchants would be redeemed by the Red Cross. Nobody is going to starve, he said.

The Sabbath passed quietly. However, fears were expressed among the local citizenry that yesterday's demonstration would be repeated when the emergency doles were exhausted.

The merchandise amounted to about $3 a person, most of them heads of large families and at least 90 per cent of them white. Many of them were armed, and weeping women were scattered through the crowd of grim-faced farmers.

George E. Morris, prominent attorney and plantation owner, who aided in partially calming the hungry men and women at the height of the demonstration, expressed the sentiment of merchants who had gathered at his office to discuss the situation.

"Unless measures for betterment of the situation are taken," he said, "the merchants must either put their stocks in the street or mount machine guns before their stores."

Local Red Cross officials announced "ample means" were available to meet the situation, but insisted they were for "orderly distribution" upon proper requisitioning. It was a lack of Red Cross requisition blanks that motivated yesterday's troubles, officials said.

Farmers feared they no longer would be given aid. Cries of "We want food" and "Our children are hungry," raised from the crowd, were mixed occasionally with expressions of "gettin' technical," the latter aimed toward the local relief authorities.

Their hunger knew no procedure not immediately related to food, and to most of them relief investigation and requisitioning were unclear. The Red Cross, however, has been hampered in its work by imposters and on at least one occasion authorities have found it necessary to turn an applicant over to police for hoarding supplies.

Mr. Morris conducted a personal investigation among "share croppers" and tenant farmers of this section, and said he found the food supply consisting chiefly of flour and lard. Plantation owners have already contributed to the support of their tenants.

About 200 children attending county schools in the England section are going hungry, he reported. Together with other citizens, Mr. Morris has instituted the custom of bringing a number of them to his home each day for food. It is a custom gaining wide following.

One of England's two banks recently closed, while cotton prices have declined to the extent where tenant farmers and share croppers are unable to realize sufficient for necessities, Mr. Morris explained.

Alabama Man's Death Offers Police Puzzle

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 4.—(AP)—John D. Cay, a profeeder employed by the Montgomery Advertiser, was found dead on a street car track near his home here early today. There were two bullet holes in his body but he had also been struck by a trolley car and it could not be readily determined whether he had been shot to death or killed by the car. He had been in the Advertiser's employ for over two years and was a native of Tallahassee, Fla., where burial will take place.

Cay left a group of friends shortly after 4 a. m. to go to his home where a wife and five children awaited him. A negro woman residing near where the body was found told police she heard shots between 4:30 and 5 a. m. Ignorance of any motive for murder hampered investigation. Robbery was unlikely as he had little money in his possession, his friends said.

SHOE REPAIRING SHOP WINTER BUSINESS GOOD

L. R. Chappel, proprietor of the Quick Service Shoe Repairing Shop, under Jacobs' at Broad and Alabama streets, reports that business has been good since Christmas, and he is looking forward to an unusually good season.

Shoe repairing as it is done in this shop is more like play than work on account of the splendid equipment they use in all branches of the work. Then again all the men in the organization have had many years' experience and they all make hard work look easy.

This shop is a member of the Shoe Rebuilders Association and lives up to the tenets of the association, in using the best materials they can buy, and doing all work, no matter what it may be for, as good as it can be done.

In the matter of service, they live up to their name and a considerable portion of the work is done for those who have their shoes repaired while they rest there a few minutes.

One branch of the business that is becoming quite a factor is the dyeing of shoes all colors. They are doing this kind of work so neatly that many of their customers are having them dye one pair of shoes over several times, to wear to different occasions. In all dye work they want the opportunity of having one day's time to guarantee the best work.

DIFFUSOR IMPROVES WILLIAMS OIL BURNER

W. M. Timmons, manager of the oil burner division of Randall Brothers, Incorporated, is highly elated over the splendid results the new diffuser attachment of the Williams Oil-O-Matic is giving the many owners of this popular oil burner.

The new diffuser is an integral part that may be attached to any Williams Oil-O-Matic burner, and it renders two great services at the same time. The first is, it makes possible a well equipped to furnish all the various grades of oils used in the various makes of oil burners, of any firm in the southeast, having six large storage tanks holding different grades of oil, and a fleet of oil service trucks, that can be loaded in less than 10 minutes, by gravity.

"This new diffuser," says Mr. Timmons, "permits a more perfect mixture of oil and air inside the furnace, and a more even pressure is maintained. This causes a combustion that is so complete that our customers can quickly see a saving in their fuel bills for the number of hours their burners are operating."

"The great beauty about the diffuser," continued Mr. Timmons, "is that one of our skilled service men can attach it to any old Williams Oil-O-Matic, just as easy as to the latest models, and this is a feature that is very pleasing to the several hundred owners of these Oil-O-Matics in this territory."

Randall Brothers, Incorporated, is also authorized factory dealer of the No-Kol, Electrol, Quiet May, Petro, Ray, Hardinge and Enterprise automatic oil burners, and also the Platt oil burning hot water heaters.

They have six experienced factory trained service men, who are thoroughly familiar with the mechanism of all these oil burners, and these men are available day or night to see that all these oil burners render the full service they were made for, and all parts for the different kinds of oil burners are kept in stock.
